BREAK FROM McADOO AND SMITH REPORTED

Sabbath Politics
McAdoo Still Strongest
California in Summer
$240,000,000 a Year

Current Events

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

IT WAS a busy New York Sabbath for the politicians and the statesmen.

Statesmen, you know, are candidates for the Presidency. And politicians are the practical men that handle the candidates, as the owner of game cocks handles his birds in the fight. They, the politicians, decide on the man whom the unimportant people are to elect.

THE dark horses were the cheerful ones yesterday. It seemed clear that the two leading candidates, "Al" Smith and McAdoo, will kill each other off. That is, it seemed clear to all dark horses.

McAdoo and his crowd were as confident as ever. Rightly or wrongly, they are convinced that "Al" Smith's nomination is absolutely impossible, entirely apart from McAdoo. They believe that Smith's BACKERS KNOW IT, although Smith does not. And they believe that when the Smith men get ready to deal they will come to McAdoo.

WITHOUT question, McAdoo is the candidate with the following now, among delegates and among the voters. His strength with labor, not merely union men, but all workers, is admitted by every politician.

When men break away from their own man they go to the one with most strength, not wanting a loser for their second choice.

That is what makes the McAdoo crowd hopeful.

ON THE other hand, "Al" Smith is among the ablest politicians in the country. He has learned politics from the cradle, as a Scotch golf professional learns golf. He knows every politician in the country. He has done a thousand favors for every big boss. He can make and promise what he chooses, in the name of Wall Street, and the promise will be KEPT.

You know it is not easy to beat experience and money combined.

IF IT were not for the power of William Jennings Bryan in any convention, Smith might accomplish what a majority of the delegates, including 99 per cent. of Southern delegates, believe to be impossible. Bryan will fight Smith to the death, politically speaking. So much for politicians. Nothing real will be known for several days.

A BERLIN scientist has found and isolated the germ that causes foot-and-mouth disease. That news will be worth many millions to this country, directly, and billions perhaps, indirectly.

It is reported, although fortunately NOT proved, that agitators in the West have purposely spread foot-and-mouth disease by means of dogs and otherwise. California is a bad State in which to play a game of that kind. The perpetrators would find it more dangerous than horse-stealing in Texas in the old days.

BY THE WAY, the people should know that all restrictions on automobiles going in and out of California are entirely removed. That difficulty is part of past history.

And everybody with an automobile should remember also that California is not only a wonderful WINTER resort, but more especially a wonderful and unexcelled SUMMER resort.

START WEST from anywhere in the United States. Then travel along the magnificent thousand miles of road from San Diego up to Seattle. It is a whole education, a lesson in patriotism that every man able to do so should give to his family.

WHEN YOU reach Seattle, stay for at least two weeks. Study the city and port that are destined to be on the great Pacific all that Marseilles or Constantinople ever was to the little Mediterranean. That little sea could easily be tucked away, in back of Seattle, for private boating.

THE TOTAL debt of the United States, of which YOU owe part, is twenty-one thousand mil-

BOY SLAIN WATCHING WEDDING

Insult to Girl and Slapped Face Lead 5 Men to Seek Revenge

A wedding, an insult to a girl, a slapped face, liquor and a thirst for veangeance.

cent bystander and sole support of cent bystander and sold support of his mother, was slain by a bullet, fired outside the place of merry-making.

Kelley had returned from work on his motorcycle. He put the machine up and walked toward his home at No. 137 Spring street, East Cambridge.

In front of Hari Gari Hall he met his friend, Daniel Coleman of Cambridge street. In the hall a wedding was in progress. The two stood talking for a few minutes in front of the hall.

Five men stepped out of a taxicab that drew up. One of the five began to shoot wildly. A bullet stung Kelley just about the heart and he dropped to the sidewalk. Today he died in the Cambridge City Hospital.

The gunman and his four companions fled through back yards pursued by Robert Smith of No. 690 Washington street, Brookline, the taxi driver. They were too agile for him, and escaped.

Today the police were hunting for the girl who slapped a man's face at the merry wedding. They have her name, and they believe that, through her, they will be able to hunt down the slayer.

From what the police have learned this man, after engaging in an altercation with some of the girl's friends, came to Boston, secured four of his friends, imbibed too freely and went back, bent on vengeance.

The victim was young Kelley, well known as an end man in minstrel shows of the Sacred Heart Church and the St. John's Knights of Columbus, Cambridge.

EX-WIZARD IS HAPPY AS TERM NEARS END

CHARLES PONZI AS HE LOOKS TODAY.

Here's former "wizard of finance" on his way to court today in Company with Sheriff Earl Blake of Plymouth. Ponzi is shown on the left. His five-year term at Plymouth ends August 6. He then faces trial on ten more indictments. Today he pleaded for liberty on low bail between the date of his release from Plymouth and the time of his new trial. Court refused his plea and fixed bail at $14,000. Ponzi was happy, smiling and confident on his trip to town.

'I'M BROKE,' SAYS PONZI IN COURT

Ex-Wizard, Nearing End of Term, Pleads for Low Bail as He Faces New Trial

Charles Ponzi, one-time wizard of 50-per-cent-in-45-days-finance, is nearing the end of his five years in Plymouth jail.

He appeared in Suffolk Superior Court today, where Judge Bishop set bail at $14,000 for his appearance for trial in October on indictments charging him with larceny.

Ponzi, appearing as his own counsel, appealed to the court for release on his personal recognizance when his present term of five years, imposed by Federal District Court, expires on August 6. Ponzi was sentenced for using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

A jury in Superior Court found him not guilty on twelve indictments for larceny a year ago. Ten other indictments remained. It was on these the former "wizard" pleaded today.

PLEADS OWN CAUSE.

"I am not the millionaire I am reputed to be," Ponzi told the court. "I am penniless. I respectfully ask that I may be allowed to go on my personal recognizance when my Plymouth sentence expires. If that is not possible I ask that bail be set at a comparatively low figure."

Ponzi quoted from a statute which provides for release of persons who have served a sentence for an offence, on their own recognizance when arraigned on similar charges.

Judge Bishop told the prisoner that this statute did not apply where the Federal government was con-

Rival Camps Charge Delegates Are All Ready to Desert Two Leaders

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

New York, June 23 (I.N.S.)—To the accompaniment of blaring bands and sounds of conflict in every quarter, the main body of delegates to the Democratic National Convention poured into New York today to find battle lines tautly drawn, an atmosphere surcharged with tension and political dynamite and axes being sharpened by managers of a dozen rival candidates.

They found William G. McAdoo, pivotal point of most of the strife, fighting grimly to hold the acknowledged lead he now has in the matter of delegates; they found the

New York, June 23.—Chairman Hull of the Democratic national committee is confined to his bed, recovering from heat prostration, exhaustion from overwork, acute indigestion and shock from learning suddenly that the national committee had been able to pay all its debts and would enter the presidential campaign wih a clean slate.

Mr. Hull toppled out of the chair at his desk in a faint just as the finance committee reported that all debts were paid.

SUN-RACING FLIER REACHES MISSOURI

Lieutenant Russell Maughan left Mitchell Field, New York, at one-half minute before three o'clock this morning (Eastern Standard time) on his dawn-to-dusk flight of 2,670 miles to San Francisco.

I was his third attempt at a daylight trip across the continent. One hundred and fifty persons witnessed his departure. As he took to the air Lieutenant Maughan waved a hand and shouted to those below:

"I'm out to beat my jinx! Watch me do it!"

MAKING FLIGHT ALONE.

He figured to reach his Western goal in sixteen hours and forty minutes. This is just four hours less than the maximum amount of daylight afforded him. He is flying alone in a 375-horsepower single-seater plane.

At 7:05 Eastern standard time (8:05 Boston time) he completed the first leg of his journey, landing at Dayton, O. He was delayed here while repairs were made to a gasoline line. He left Dayton at 8:16 Eastern standard time (9:15 Boston time), heading straight for Indianapolis.

He covered the 575 miles from New York to Dayton in four hours and seven minutes, slightly ahead of schedule. Heavy fogs in northern New York and rain in Pennsylvania slowed up his speed for many miles.

He passed over Indianapolis at 9:59, Boston time, negotiating the 110 miles between Dayton and Indianapolis in forty minutes. This was at a rate of speed of approximately 165 miles an hour.

From Indianapolis he flew north

RADIO RECEIVING CONDITIONS TONIGHT

Radio conditions tonight ought to be good from stations broadcasting in the eastern and southeastern part of the country.

Stations in the West and Middle West probably will not be so good because of an area of low barometric pressure which exists here.

ARMY FLIER MAKES GOOD TIME ON DAWN-TO-DUSK FLIGHT

STARTS ON 3RD RACE WITH SUN

toward Chrisman, Ill., which he reached at 10:30 daylight time. He then raced with a storm on his way toward Springfield. He made ninety miles on the Chrisman leg in thirty-three minutes.

He swept over Decatur, Ill., at 10:52, still going at a high rate of speed. He was then thirty-seven minutes ahead of schedule.

Crissy Field at San Francisco, lies 2,670 miles west as the crow flies. The aviator will go somewhat farther in his jumps between four inland fields where fresh supplies and a few moments rest await him.

From his margin of time the four re-fueling stops may take four hours, but he hopes to cut each stop to a third its scheduled time.

July 9 of last year he set out with the same hopes in the optimism of a first trial. Midway across the country a small motor ailment forced him down. The plane was rushed back and ten days later a second attempt was begun.

This promised success through every hard stage of the journey until at Rock Springs, Wyoming, 60 miles from his goal, an oil leak of no consequence in repairing, but vital in the air forced him down.

Maughan issued a statement before the flight deploring the idea that the flight is merely a "stunt."

"It is an attempt to show the people of the United States the necessity for keeping the air service equipment up to date," he said.

Army fliers, he declared, given modern equipment can be mobilized anywhere in the land within a few hours in the event of possible enemy attack.

Maughan carried a copy of every New York morning paper, which he hoped to deliver to Mayor Rolph in San Francisco this evening.

Five Records Are Made by Two Navy Fliers

Washington, June 23.—Four world records for seaplanes, including the endurance and distance records, were broken and one world record established by Lieutenants F. W. Mead and J. D. Price in a flight which ended today when their naval craft was forced down by engine trouble.

The navy fliers, who took the air from the Anacostia naval air station here at 12:10 p. m. yesterday, made a sustained flight of 13 hours and 23 minutes and covered a distance of 1,550 kilometers. The present recognized endurance record is 11 hours and 16 minutes, and the distance record 1,275 kilometers.

In addition, the flight smashed the speed record for both the 500 and 1,000 kilometer distances, with an average of 73.41 miles an hour against the record of 71.98 miles for the first, and 74.27 miles against the record of 70.49 miles for the second. For the 1,500 kilometer distance, a record of 74.17 miles an hour was set up.

Hopes of the two airmen to stretch their new endurance record to 24 hours were defeated by a breakdown of the gasoline pump on their 585 horsepower Wright motor.

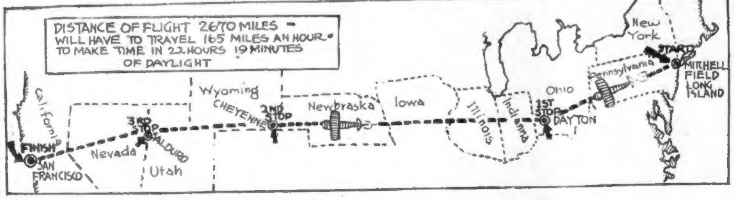
ARMY COMMANDER NEW FASCISTI CHIEF

Rome, June 23.—It is authoritatively stated that Gen. De Bono, former police head, has resigned as commander-in-chief of the Fascisti National militia and is being succeeded by Gen. Giardino, one of the chief army commanders.

The appointment of Gen. Giardino indicates the definite absorption of the Fascisti militia into the army, a move which causes it to lose its present character as the armed force of the Fascisti.

FLIER AND ROUTE IN DAWN-DUSK TRIP



HOW AVIATOR IS RACING SUN

Map shows route followed by Lieutenant Russell Maughan today in his dawn-to-dusk flight from Mitchel Field, New York, to San Francisco. He left at 3:59¼ a. m., Eastern standard time. He landed in Dayton, Ohio shortly after 7 and resumed his trip at 8:15. He expects to complete the flight—his third attempt—within seventeen hours.

DARK HORSE LOOMS ON THE BREAK REPORT

forces of Governor Al E. Smith aggressively confident and pursuing delegates with a business-like efficiency that boded ill for rival aspirants; and behind these two leaders they found steadily growing sentiment that in the end neither McAdoo nor Smith will be the nominee because of the very savagery of their fight.

They found, too, an undeniable drift toward other candidates promoted by the conviction that McAdoo and Smith will "kill each other off."

BIG FOUR DARK HORSE.

Twenty-four hours before the convention finds a big four, among the dark horses—John W. Davis of West Virginia; Samuel M. Ralston of Indiana; Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama and Carter Glass of Virginia.

All except Ralston are on the ground here and their managers are working like trojans against the time when the much feared "break" comes in the ranks of McAdoo and Smith.

Rumors and reports of "breaks" in the McAdoo and Smith ranks already have begun to float about.

Smith's managers were smilingly inquiring whether it was true that in Texas, Iowa, Missouri and Michigan, McAdoo was losing strength and faced with a hard battle to keep his margin of control in these delegations.

There were even reports that in Michigan he has lost out, and that in Missouri and Iowa, two large delegations which have been banked on by managers, internal dissension has arisen to such a degree that both delegations may split into many individual units and dissipate their strength among half a dozen candidates.

CARRY FIGHT TO HIM

Heated denial met these reports on the part of the McAdoo contingent. McAdoo's managers characterized such reports as "defeatist propaganda" circulated by the Smith camp, and they promptly countered with claims that "when Smith has run his race" they will break into the New York delegation itself for at least twenty-four votes to add to McAdoo's Western and Southern strength.

They made similar claims concerning the Louisiana delegation of twenty and the big Pennsylvania delegation of seventy-six which have been counted on for Underwood and Smith.

Smith managers say McAdoo has been placed on the defensive in this hectic struggle for delegates. Using the Ku Klux Klan issue as a battering ram, the Smith-Underwood coalition has carried the fight to McAdoo and by shrewd tactics they have made it appear that the ex-Treasury head is opposed to an anti-Klan plank even to the point that he cannot stand on a platform that contains such a declaration.

Edmond H. Moore of Ohio, who successfully put over James M. Cox at San Francisco four years ago and who is now among the anti-McAdoo leaders here, asserted today there were 590 votes in the convention pledged to an anti-Klan plank, irrespective of what the platform committee does about it.

If the platform is silent or straddles the Klan issue, he says, a minority report will be brought in and assured of passage. A majority is 550.

Plans were completed at midnight conference at the Biltmore participated in by all of the anti-McAdoo strength of the convention—Governor Smith, George E. Brennan, of Illinois; Joseph M. Guffey, of Pennsylvania; Norman E. Mack, of New York; Fred Lynch, of Minnesota, and several others interested in the candidacies of Underwood and Ralston.

There was a careful rechecking of figures at this conference, and when the count was completed renewed assertions were made that McAdoo had been stopped. They concede him between 400 and 450 delegates on the first three ballots, and a possibility of his attaining 550 by the sixth or seventh.

But under no circumstances which they consider conceivable do they believe he can get beyond 610. That, they believe is the absolute maximum for McAdoo and it is still 122 points short of nomination.

FEAR STAMPEDE.

The principal danger the anti-McAdoo coalition confronts is a stampede. They recognize that any candidate who gets a majority of the convention at any time is an exceedingly dangerous person, but proceeding on the theory that forewarned is forearmed, they have consolidated their "battalion of death" into what they believe unbreakable lines.

(International News Reel Photo.)
LIEUT. RUSSELL MAUGHAN

The chief apparent weakness of the anti-McAdoo coalition is that they have succeeded in concentrating on no candidate. They have a common purpose—to stop McAdoo—but the common man to whom they can throw their strength remains to be developed.

Smith's strength is, of course, the foundation of their structure. He is assured of anywhere from 250 to 350 votes in the early balloting, depending on the favorite son showing and he is easily capable of running up to 450 in the first ten ballots. But Underwood has some of this anti-McAdoo strength. So has John W. Davis. So has Samuel M. Ralston and other less imposing figures.

DAVIS AND UNDERWOOD.

The McAdoo forces were quick to point this weakness, and in it they saw their chief hope of breaking the coalition.

"They cannot concentrate on any one and it is this weakness that in the end will defeat them," said Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, one of McAdoo's "board of strategy."

With this situation prevailing on the eve of the convention opening, both Smith and McAdoo managers are constantly engaged in denying rumors that the business of "second choice" was receiving any consideration.

Despite the denials, however, the supporters of Davis and Underwood both are claiming that when the showdown comes the Smith following will be found flocking to their banners. There is considerable Davis strength and Underwood strength in Smith's delegations.

SWING TO GLASS.

On McAdoo's part, David L. Rockwell, the director-general, asserted heatedly that the matter of McAdoo's heir had not even been thought of. But this was belied by the story circulated among the arriving delegates of a meeting between McAdoo and Senator Carter Glass, whose Virginia delegation of twenty-four is instructed for him "to the death."

At this meeting Senator Glass is understood to have said:

"If you come within twenty-four votes of being nominated you will be nominated."

To which McAdoo is said to have replied:

"That is very nice of you, Senator, and in return I will say that if I see I cannot be nominated I will swing every vote I can to you."

WILL PLACE RALSTON'S NAME IN NOMINATION

New York, June 23.—Senator Samuel M. Ralston will be placed in nomination at the Democratic National Convention under an agreement reached today at a caucus of the Indiana delegation. Frederich Van Nuys, Ralston's law partner, will make the speech.

HITCHCOCK AMONG PLATFORM FRAMERS

New York, June 23.—Former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock was selected today by the Nebraska delegation as its representative on the Democratic National Convention resolutions committee.

LEAGUE PLANK DROPPED, BUT NOT KLAN

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

New York, June 23 (I.N.S.).—The Democratic presidential campaign this Fall will be fought with the scandals, official corruption and agricultural relief as the main issues under terms of a tentative platform adopted here today by an unofficial group of Democratic leaders.

The document will be submitted to the committee on resolutions tomorrow.

The conferees, led by Cordel Hull, Democratic national chairman, and Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the resolutions committee, reached a decision to keep the League of Nations out of the coming campaign as a national issue and to leave the final verdict on a Ku Klux plank to the convention itself.

On all other issues the conferees were virtually unanimous in their recommendations.

BITTER ROW.

The verdict to ignore the league as a national issue was reached after a bitter factional row in secret session. Supporters of a league plank, including a new proposal for American adherence, however, served notice they would carry their fight into the Committee on Resolutions, and if defeated there, on to the floor of the convention.

This fight will be led by Newton D. Baker and Senator Carter Glass, who are reported ready to use a platform memorandum, prepared by President Wilson before his death, to influence the convention in this memorandum. The former President was said to have urged an outright appeal to the Democratic party to stand again by the league as a national issue.

The Klan issue also provoked heated discussions in the unofficial sessions. A small group, representing New York and Illinois, demanded the inclusion of a plank directly denouncing the Klan by name. This proposal was rejected by the conferees but tentative approval was given to a plank declaring in favor of constitutional guarantees for "freedom of speech" and "religious liberties."

There were indications, too, that the anti-Klan group would carry its fight against the Klan into the convention itself if defeated before the resolutions committee.

The chief plank in the tentative draft was one dealing with "honesty in government" and bitterly flaying the Republican administration for the Senate scandals.

The agricultural plank, upon which the Democrats hope to win the West, promises a reduction in freight rates, with the lowest rates given to bulky farm products, easier Federal credit facilities and steps towards a revival of European markets.

As an additional agricultural remedy the plank declared for a complete revision of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law.

Mack Trying to Swing Southerners to Smith

New York, June 23.—A drive to swing the delegates from the Southern states into the camp of Governor Al E. Smith was instituted today under direction of Norman E. Mack, former chairman of the Democratic party, and one of the leaders of the Smith forces.

"Many of the Southern delegates," said Mr. Mack, "are coming to realize that Al Smith is the man to be named if we are to carry the industrial East and North, states like Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey.

"I am also assured that much of opposition to Smith from the South is breaking down. This is the political change that I have noted within the last twenty-four hours."

ARKANSAS OUT FOR SENATOR ROBINSON

New York, June 23.—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the Senate, was placed in the field of presidential candidates today by the Arkansas delegation which resolved to support him "first, last and all the time."

Former Governor Charles H. Brough, who will nominate Senator Robinson, took charge of affairs and announce that a steering committee headed by Joseph M. Hill of Fort Smith would manage the Robinson candidacy.

Today in New York

Today's happenings in New York on the eve of the convention:

Fifth avenue and the hotel district resound to the tramp of cheering delegations and the blare of marching bands.

From a balcony of his hotel William G. McAdoo exhorts a group of howling Western delegates to stand by him to the last ditch, and they shout back that they will.

New York noisily acclaims allegiance to its favorite, Al Smith, in the greatest civic parade in the history of the city.

McAdoo and Smith men continue to claim victory, but partisans of a dozen other candidates redouble their activities and repeat their predictions that neither of the two leaders can be nominated.

Indiana friends of Senator Samuel M. Ralston announce they have determined to disregard his request and place his name before the convention.

DEVER STOCK IS PICKING UP AT NEW YORK

By JACK LAIT.

Copyright, 1924, by I. N. S.

New York, June 23.—There seems to be a general careless habit of uniting Brennan, Taggart and Guffey into a trinity because they are the surviving big ones of the old school, now that Charles F. Murphy has passed away and Norman E. Mack, while still in the main wagon, is out of the driver's seat.

It became quite clear, however, to an inquirer who has gone through many a hot battle with these Democratic steerers, that George Brennan, the Illinois successor to Roger Sullivan, is in the trio only as far as convention courtesy demands, and that his views and purposes are at a tangent from those of his two old cronies.

58 ILLINOIS VOTES.

Illinois has fifty-eight uninstructed voes, and most of those will be instructed when the time comes, by nobody else but this Brennan, the rotund, gray-haired little gentleman who is as cushion-tired as Cal Coolidge and a whole lot more mysterious.

And the chances this morning were that when Brennan "sends out the word" the word will have its five letters, but they will not be Smith at all; they will be Dever. Dever formerly came from Woburn, Mass.

Brennan, after all, is first for Illinois. It wouldn't hurt his standing to bring home a presidential nomination for his State, especially wound around Bill Dever, who is tremendously popular at home, liked by the wets for his liberal views and the drys for his fierce enforcement of the laws as they stand.

With the G. O. P. thinking to land Illinois, a vital and doubtful area, through Dawes, who isn't an Illinoisan at all, and isn't as strong at home as some outsiders think, Dever can be offered to the convention as having a direct punch beyond his own merits as a man, a citizen and public figure.

By and large, the Dever stock was picking up when the sun rose this morning.

NEW HAMPSHIRE TO VOTE FOR BROWN

New York, June 23.—Another dark horse was trotted out today by the New Hampshire delegation, whose spokesmen indicated on their arrival that they would vote "for the first hour on five ballots at least" for Governor Fred Brown. Plans to promote the Brown boom still were somewha indefinite but it appeared unlikely that his name would be formally placed before the convention.

The delegation chose these officers: National committeeman, Robert C. Murchie; National committeewoman, Mrs. Dorothy B. Jackson; resolutions committee, Raymond B. Stevens; rules, Frank M. Richardson, and chairman of the delegation, Robert Jackson.

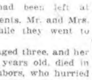
scored eighty-eight degrees above, a mark four degrees above that made at the same hour yesterday.

Electric fans were buzzing throughout the city all day and the beaches were black with those fortunate enough to have an extra hour or two at their mercy. Thunder showers tonight and fair and cooler for tomorrow are predictions, however.

The intense heat created such a demand by noon-lunchers for cooling milk draughts that restaurants and lunchrooms reported a temporary famine in this product. Until emergency deliveries could be made, no milk was had for money or persuasion.

Eight lives by drowning have been taken toll of and scores of rescues made necessary thus far in the first hot wave to visit Boston and the Bay State.

Thirty-eight persons, spilled out of canoes jammed near the Waltham watch factory, were pulled out of the Charles River.



S. H. Leary

In South Boston, Patrolman Charles C. Brown, summoned to the new Columbus Beach on complaint that boys were playing ball, arrived in time to save three-year-old John Thornton of West Ninth street from drowning.

The drowned:

Stephen H. Leary, twenty-eight, No. 535 East Second street, South Boston. Drowned off City Point today when he stood up in a boat to light a cigarette and craft capsized. Three companions saved.

Francis Manterio, No. 15 Garden street, West End, who dived from the West Boston bridge.

Sarkis Kochakin, eighteen, Haverhill High School student. Drowned learning to swim in Lake Saltonstall.

Charles Gascon, twenty-three, of Westfield, spilled from canoe in Hampton Pond.

Edward Connelly, seventeen, Pittsfield, sank in Richmond Pond.

Laurison Shankland, Springfield, drowned in Lake Lorraine.

George Barry, seventeen, of West Boylston; spilled with three companions from boat in Lily Pond, Worcester.

An unidentified youth, slipped off a plank in Bemis Pond, Chicopee.

SISTERS, AGED 2 AND 3, DIE IN FIRE

Sherman Station, Me., June 23.—Trapped in flames which destroyed their home, two small children were burned to death here and a third, suffeing from severe burns, was rescued by neighbors.

The children had been left at home by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Finson, while they went to visit neighbors.

Gladys Finson, aged three, and her sister, Janet, two years old, died in the flames. Neighbors, who hurried to the house when they saw smoke issuing from the building, arrived in time to save Waldo Finson, five years old.

PASTOR ATTACKS BOTH OLD PARTIES

New York, N. Y., June 23.—Rev. Dr. Haynes Holmes assailed the Democratic convention, Coolidge and party politics in general in a sermon at Community Church.

Characterizing the big Madison Square Garden event as a "Circus," he added:

"When it is over, it is probable there will have been hatched enough bargains and conspiracies to put scores of men in prison, if the facts were known."

MAN ARRESTED FOR BEGGING

After having been warned several times by Policewoman Margaret McHugh and Lillian Taylor that soliciting alms in the Public Garden was a violation of the law, John Flynn, 45 years old, of No. 395 Shawmut avenue, South End, again approached them and was arrested. He was taken to the Back Bay police station where he was booked charged with violation of the park rules, namely, soliciting alms. He will appear in Central Court in the morning.

Britain Agrees on Free State Envoy To America

London, June 23.—Great Britain has assented to the proposal of the Irish Free State to send a separate representative to Washington, it was announced in the House of Commons today by J. H. Thomas, the Colonial Secretary.

The question whether such representative would have an independent position at Washington was being discussed with a minister of the Free State who is in London, he said.

Ponzi will be brought to Charles Street Jail to await trial in this city in August if his friends or relatives are unable to raise his bail.

Friends of the debonair prisoner said today that the $14,000 bond will be offered before Ponzi leaves Plymouth and that he will be free until his trial.

The famous prisoner wore his usual confidential smile when he greeted old newspaper friends and others at the courthouse. He appeared to be considerably improved in health.

"I have gained fifty pounds in weight and am feeling fine," he said.

Ponzi's faithful wife, Rose, accompanied her husband and Sheriff Earl Blake on the journey from Plymouth to Boston. She is sure that her husband will obtain bail.

PARKING DRIVE ON CARS NEAR BRAVES FIELD

Several Owners Who Left Machines Near Auto Salesrooms Summoned

Captain Mason of the Brighton station is waging a crusade against the abuse of parking privileges as a result of protests of automobile concerns on Commonwealth avenue, near Braves Field.

Motorcycle Officers Donohue and Barron and Patrolman Lundy have applied for approximately a hundred summons against automobilists, on charges of violating traffic regulations, in parking their cars for more than twenty minutes.

Numerous cars have been tagged and the owners requested to appear at the station and warned against the violation.

This has met with some success but many owners continue to park in front of automobile salesrooms and other business firms on the avenue. Summons for some of these were granted today and issued by Judge Connelly.

COLORADO TO VOTE McADOO 4, SMITH 6

New York, June 23.—Governor Sweet of Colorado, accompanied by a majority of the delegates from that State, was among the early callers at the campaign headquarters of Governor Smith. The Colorado executive said his delegation, after the first ballot, would vote four for McAdoo, six for Smith and would split the remainder between Davis and Underwood.

The delegation, caucusing later, voted to give a complimentary vote to Governor Sweet for the vice-presidential nomination.

WOMAN GETS SUSPENDED TERM FOR DESERTING HER INFANT SON

COMPANION IS TO WORK OUT FINE

South End Mother Wins Parole on Promise to Take Baby to Grandmother

Mrs. Wilhelmina McMackin, twenty-two-year-old mother, who deserted her three-months old son in Somerville because she had no money nor a place to work, told a pathetic story of want and privation when arraigned in Somerville district court today before Judge Malcolm Sturtevant. She pleaded guilty to a charge of abandoning the child.

Judge Sturtevant sentenced her to Sherborn Reforamtory, but suspended sentence when Mrs. MacMackin promised to take the baby from the Somerville hospital to her grandmother's home in Lynn. She will now try to get a job to support herself and the child.

Richard C. McLean, friend of the McMackin woman, was fined $50 for aiding and abetting the abandonment. He was remanded to East Cambridge House of Correction to work out the fine.

Mrs. McMackin was turned out of her South End room when she couldn't pay the rent. She started to walk to Springfield, carrying the infant in her arms.

24 Warren street and left her infant in the Rafferty hammock.

A few hours later the couple, carrying all their possessions in a hand-bag and suit case were taken into custody by the police of Brighton. The mother is locked up in Somerville charged with abandoning a child, while McLane is charged with being an accessory.

he story she told Chief Kendall, cording to that official, was one filled with tragedy.

"I was married in New London on March 6, 1923, to William D. McMackin," she said, "but we only lived together three months. My husband left me and I lived in New London a time then went to Yonkers, New York, and finally came to Boston. I knew the baby was coming but I got a job in a Brookline drug store and worked there until shortly before the baby was born, on March 2.

"Finally the landlady told me I'd have to pay or get out. I was living on Warren avenue, South End I couldn't pay, so I packed what few clothes I had, took my baby and left.

"While I was working at the drug store, Richard McLane befriended me. He helped me as much as he could, but he was out of work. When I left the rooming house, he insisted on going, too.

DOCTORS FEED LAD MINUS FOOD A WEEK

Haverhill, June 23.—Suffering from starvation, 17-year-old Peter Villinucci, address unknown, who was picked up unconscious in an alleyway at No. 72 River street by Patrolman John Reagan, is at City Hospital under the care of physicians, who are endeavoring to build him up. City Physician Zelig said that the boy had evidently had nothing to eat for more than a week.

Man will work out $50 fine in jail.

MUSSOLINI TO REORGANIZE FASCISTA

Rome, June 23 (A.P.)—The Giornale D'Italia says today that Premier Mussolini and Commander Giardio Debono are planning to reorganize the Fascista military body, making it a still more constitutional organization, with police powers.

The supervision of the body would be transferred from the Ministry of the Interior to the Ministry of War and an army general in active military service placed in command.

This reorganization, which would follow the nationwide upheaval over the disappearance and alleged murder of Socialist Deputy Matteotti, would have the effect of removing Commander Debono as the head of the Fascista militia. Debono has announced his intention of taking legal action against all newspapers which have connected him with any responsibility in the Matteotti case.

Professor Carlo Bazzi, editor of the Nuovo Paese, was detained by the police today, as was also Flavio Pilla, who is on the staff of the paper. The police have searched both their homes. Professor Bazzi was later released. Although the editor has declared himself in favor of Mussolini and the Fascista, he has frequently attacked in his newspaper some members of the cabinet in connection with an agreement made with the Sinclair Oil group.

SAYS YOUTHS ADMIT BRIGHTON BURGLARY

Special officer Walter Brown of the Brighton station, after a talk today in Dedham jail with Paul V. Higgins and John F. Connors, who are held in default of bail on an appeal from the Brookline court, where they were arraigned on charges of burglary, obtained a confession from the youths, he says, that they broke into the home of Charles F. Waldron of 82 Academy Hill road, Brighton, on June 10. The two youths also have cases pending in Melrose, having been arrested after being accused of breaking into the home of Patrolman Walley on Yuel street.

ELKS FUND DRIVE NEARING END

A last effort to put over the $100,000 convention entertainment fund will be made this week by Charles E. Osgood, Boston business man, who is chairman of the Elks' Ways and Means Committee in charge of the coming convention in this city of Elks from all sections of the country.

The committee announces a shortage of about $12,000 of the amount needed to care for the Elks scheduled to come here during the week of July 6.

THAW HAS WON LOVE OF WIDOW IN NEW YORK

New York, N. Y., June 23.—A beautiful widow has entered the life of Harry K. Thaw, expert rabbit student and slayer of Stanford White. While the world has been supposing that he came to New York two days ago to bask once more in the bright lights of Broadway—Thaw was fooling them once again.

The smile of a woman was the only radiance that Thaw desired.

Mrs. Edith Lewis of No. 427 Park avenue, is the lady in question. Tall slim, and with large eyes like two starry pools. Mrs. Lewis sat in her apartment and admitted that she had known Thaw for many years and that she liked him more now than in days gone by. Much more, in fact.

Arriving in New York on Saturday morning, Thaw, proceeded to the Waldorf, where a room was engaged in his secretary's name. And then, before a scant three hours had passed, Thaw was comfortably seated in Mrs. Lewis' Park avenue apartment.

"Harry is not insane," said Mrs. Lewis dreamily, "and people somehow don't realize that he has been unfortunate in more ways than one. Sometimes I think it is the fault of newspapers. They never, never, let the poor man alone.

the poor man alone."

WILL INVITE U. S. TO INTERALLIED PARLEY

London, June 23 (A.P.)—Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons today that his conference with Premier Herriot of France was preliminary to an interallied conference to meet in London, probably July 16. The communique issued last night covered the ground of the conversation, he said, but added:

"It is highly desirable that America should be represented at the conference. We are not at the moment in communication, but a communication to that effect will be made to the American Government at once."

LAND PASSENGERS OF STRANDED SHIP

Panama, June 23.—All the passengers and some of the crew of the stranded Pacific Mail liner Colombia have arrived at Balboa on the transport Chaumont. The Colombia ran aground on Cane Island, off the west coast of Costa Rica, en route to New York.

The ship was making twelve knots during an unusually heavy rainstorm when she struck. The passengers were fox-trotting at the time and say that the quick action of the purser in ordering the orchestra to continue playing probably averted a panic.

MRS. STILLMAN'S LAWYER IS DEAD

Yonkers, N. Y., June 23.—John F. Brenna, attorney for Mrs. Anne U. Stillman and associate counsel for the New York Central Railroad, died suddenly of heart disease at his home in Yonkers today.

WAS LEVENSON'S VOICE, SAYS DETECTIVE

O'Farrell Testifies Mysterious Caller Warned Him Against Appearing at the Trial

A man whose voice the detective recognized since as that of Harry E. Levenson, telephoned Val O'Farrell, head of the detective agency of that name, in New York and attempted to dissuade him from testifying at the Coakley-Corcoran conspiracy trial, O'Farrell testified today.

Today's session was marked, despite the heat, by frequent clashes between District Attorney Reading and John P. Feeney, Coakley's counsel.

O'Farrell testified that the man he has since recognized as Levenson "warned" him that he would be indicted if he came to Boston. The telephoner refused to identify himself.

O'Farrell ended the telephone conversation by calling the stranger "a faker and a bluff."

Judge Whiting today ruled out the statement which Henry J. Conner, New York detective, claimed the late Matthew J. Horgan made to him, relative to the Stearns divorce case. The court held that it did not come within the statute of limitations.

Attorney Feeney took an exception and the jury was excused an hour last Friday to permit counsel to argue the law on this point.

O'Farrell testified today that Horgan was Boston manager for the O'Farrell agency in Boston.

A man named Sloan was manager at one time, he said.

Q.—Did someone telephone to you on Tuesday, June 10? A.—Yes. I received a telephone call from a person whose voice I did not recognize.

Q.—Had you ever seen Levenson up to that time? A.—No. (Excluded.)

Q.—Since June 10 have you heard Levenson testify in this courtroom? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you now recognize the voice that telephoned you? A.—I do.

PHONE WARNING.

Judge Whiting on objection from the district attorney, asked the purpose of this evidence. Feeney replied that it was to attack the credibility and weight of the evidence offered by Levenson. Judge Whiting allowed Feeney to proceed.

Q.—Do you recognize that voice? A.—Yes. It was the voice of Levenson.

Q.—State what was said. A.—The voice said: "I am a friend of yours. You did me a favor two years ago. Now I want to reciprocate." I said: "That's good news. What do you want to do for me?" The voice replied: "I want to tip you off on something very valuable." I asked: "What is it?"

The voice said: "You are going over to Boston to testify in the Coakley case. I know all about it. Don't you go over to Boston. If you go you will be indicted. It won't do your health any good to go." I said: "What favor did I ever do for you?" The voice said: "Never mind, now. I don't wish to disclose my identity in any way."

CALLED HIM FAKER.

I asked him if he didn't think that was out of the ordinary to call me up in such a way. I told him I was going to Boston to tell only the truth. I said: "They can't indict me for telling the truth."

He said: "You're going over to testify for Coakley; that you worked for him in the Stearns case." I said: "I am not. I am going over there to testify that Matthew J. Horgan worked for me; I think you are a faker and a bluff and you can't keep me away by your bulldozing. I'm going over there to testify in spite of what you've said."

Q.—Did you have a talk with Coakley about the Stearns matter at any time? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you testify before the Supreme Court? A.—No.

Q.—On Saturday last, did someone telephone to you? A.—Yes. State Officer O'Neil or a man who represented himself to be State Officer O'Neil telephoned to me.

ANOTHER CALL.

Q.—Did someone else telephone you just before he did? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you know the first person who telephoned? A.—No.

Q.—Did you report that fact to State Officer O'Neil? A.— I did.

In cross-examiantion, Reading asked if he had reported to anyone the telephone calls on Saturday. He replied that he had—to his stenographer and to Conner.

Q.—Did you report it to Conner for your own protection? A.—I don't need any protection.

Pershing in Royal Box as American Wins Prize

London, June 23. — General John J. Pershing was the guest today of King George and Queen Mary, with King Christian and Queen Alexandrina of Denmark, in the royal box at the international horse show. American Ambassador Kellogg and Colonel Kenyon A. Joyce, United States military attache, also were attached to the party surrounding the royal box.

Miss Jean Brown Scott of Port Kennedy, Pa., driving her own horses, won the first prize in the competition for a pair of horses attached to a buggy driven by an amateur. The horses were Newton Victor and Fairview Leader.

DOGS BITE 2 TOTS AND MAN IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, June 23.—Two children and a man were bitten by dogs in the past twenty-four hours. Clifford Hitchcock, twelve years of age, of No. 14 Green street, is the most seriously injured. He is in Gale Hospital suffering from wounds under the eyes, chin and on the cheek, received when a small English setter attacked him. Mary Devine, twelve, of No. 118 Cedar street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Devine, was bitten on the left leg by a dog owned by Mrs. Thomas Moffitt of Cedar street. Grover Gly of Bradley Brook section reported that he was attacked by three stray dogs, who tore one of his legs.

WARRANTS OUT FOR WOMEN SPEEDERS

Four of Seven Complaints by the Brighton Police Are Against Fair Drivers

Summons returnable July 5 have been issued against alleged speedsters, several of whom are women. The complainants are Motorcycle Patrolmen Daniel Donahue, Jr., and Chester Barron of Brighton station.

Numerous complaints have been made relative to the speed of automobiles on Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street. Those summoned include Elizabeth J. McCarthy of Chestnut street, Newton, charged with speeding 32 to 34 miles an hour on Commonwealth avenue; Marjorie A. Diehl of Lincoln street, South Natick, charged with speeding on Beacon street; Eva White, Charles street, Boston, charged with speeding 30 to 36 miles an hour; Donald M. Hill, Pine Rindge road, Waban, summoned for speeding 36 miles an hour; John H. Woodman, Commonwealth avenue, Newton; Joseph H. Hildreth, Berkshire road, Newtonville.

Patrolman Barron has a summons for Miss Augusta Bradford of White avenue, Newton Centre, charging her with speeding from 35 to 40 miles an hour on Beacon street. Barron is alleged to have followed the car operated by Miss Bradford from the Reservoir to Hammond street, finally overtaking her at Newton Centre.

WANTS HER BACK

MRS. JOHN STEEL

Last week the court dismissed her suit for a separation and alimony and now the famous tenor seeks a reconciliation.

TOWN LOCKUP PROVES TOO SMALL

The little jail house in North Reading proved too small to accommodate eight men arrested by State troopers and charged with disturbing the peace at a camp near Walnut corner in North Reading.

People in neighboring camps complained that several young men were creating a disturbance at their camp. Troopers were sent there and arrested eight young men.

WIFE'S SUIT A MISTAKE, SAYS TENOR STEEL

Willing to Do the Washing and Cooking if She'll Only Return

Chicago, June 23.—Romance still is alive in the heart of John Steel, tenor, and he wants his wife back. He even is willing to do the family washing and cook three meals a day, if she will return to him.

Mrs. Steel's suit for a separation was dismissed in New York last week. Steel was notified, and he immediately commenced an attempt to effect a reconciliation. Her suit charged cruelty and intoxication. She is known on the stage as Sidonie Espero.

Steel admitted that one reason he wanted his wife back was so that he might play with his 3-year-old son, John Steel, Jr.

"I still love my wife," he said. "Her suit was a terrible mistake. Now I am glad that the case has been dismissed because I want to tell her how much I love her and induce her to come back to me. She belongs with me.

"If she will only listen to me and realize how lonesome it is for me without the baby and herself, I am sure she will come back," Steel said.

DE KAY PLOT CASE DELAYED IN LONDON

London, June 23.—The case of J. W. De Kay, wanted in Providence, R. ROME PROPOSES CATHOLIC BOYCOTT OF IMMORAL PLAYS

DEMANDS STAGE BE PURIFIED

Stand, Approved by Pope, Is Presented to Alan Dale, Dramatic Critic

New York, June 23.—A proposed boycott by Catholics of immoral plays is the high point of a remarkable Catholic church document obtained exclusively by Alan Dale, drama critic of the New York American, and received by cable from Dale.

In this document it is stated to be the clear duty of Catholics to absent themselves from immoral plays. The need for the spiritual improvement of the drama is dwelt upon.

Dale, visiting Rome, sought the views of Pope Pius XI, on the modern theatre. He was asked by Father Burke, vice-rector of the American College in Rome, to put his questions in writing. These questions were answered by the Central Organization of Catholic Italian Action. This is an organization approved by the Pope, which in the past has reflected opinions of the Holy See.

OF IMMENSE IMPORT.

The answers given to Dale are so complete that it is not necessary to print his questions. The answers from the church, which will be of extreme importance to the entire theatre field of this country and of extreme interest to all theatregoers, follow:

1—"In Rome the Central Secretariat for Morals, a department under the Central Committee of Catholic Action, has begun to deal with this very grave problem, but it has so far limited its activities to inquiries for the detection of immoral performances and to studies for their ultimate prevention, since, unfortunately, immorality, especially on the stage, is everywhere spreading in a remarkable and distressing way.

2—"In order to purify the drama we should educate the moral sense of the public, denounce and boycott immoral performances and encourage such authors as are morally safe.

BOTH ARE CONCERNED.

3—"It is right and necessary that both church and state should concern themselves with this matter. The church has never, in point of fact, ceased from fighting immorality under whatever garb it presented itself, but has done so both in the ordinary course of her teaching and also by utterances (documents of special solemnity. Unfortunately civil power has not always fulfilled, nor does it now always fulfill, its duty in this respect, partly because the law is itself incomplete, and partly because observance of even such laws and ordinances as have been enacted are not enforced.

4—"Groups or leagues of fathers of families, all of them serious and experienced men, might well contribute to reawaken the normal sense where it has, unfortunately, fallen very low and is even incapable of detecting immorality in works and performances obviously offensive, and it would not be a bad thing—indeed, it would be useful—that such groups and leagues should be called upon to give their opinions.

DUTY IS CLEAR.

5—"The duty of Catholics to absent themselves from the theatre when immoral plays are performed is clear, although it is unfortunately not felt or observed by all, and this non-observance of it either scandalizes the weaker brethren or draws them to patronize the same plays whilst at the same time encouraging further production of that kind of play.

6—"The duty of critics is evident (we refer to Catholic critics, for whom the matter of primary concern is the salvation of souls). It is not permissible for them to defend or support for the sake of their artistic value performances that constitute a great danger for the souls of spectators and especially of the young.

7—"True progress on the spiritual side is not so far discernible in the theatre, partly because the present financial strain is felt by many and it would be well for Catholic authors to take advantage of the present moment to use also those means whose effectiveness is unquestionable to further the Christian restoration of society."

Harold Vanderbilt Coming to North Shore Next Month, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

EACH week-end seems to mark another opening of North Shore houses. There seem to be an added number of distinguished visitors from other cities this year. Washington is leading its statesmen, New York its scholars, and England, of course, its diplomat.

The Myopia Hunt Club is outstanding as a rendezvous for society. This year the golf course is to have a new hole built by Harold S. Vanderbilt. Mr. Vanderbilt is expected to be at Round Plains Kennels, the Caswell estate in Beverly Farms, about the end of July and he will probably remain until September. His yacht, the Vagrant, will be moored off West Beach, as in seasons past.

Senator and Mrs. Arthur Capper of Washington are registered for the summer at the Oceanside Hotel. The Oceanside colony is contributing also the scholarly touch. Prof. and Mrs. Charles Downer Hazen of Columbia will be there. The Shore also counts Sir Esme Howard and his family on its list of distinguished guests and delightful hosts.

THE George von L. Meyers, Jr., are at Hamilton, in their cottage, Longmeadow, while Mrs. George von L. Meyer is at Rock Maple, her Hamilton estate. Mrs. von L. Meyer has been abroad for the Winter and late Spring.

RICH NEW YORK PUBLISHER'S BODY FOUND

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 23.—The body of Clarence D. Sheldon, 76, wealthy New York publisher, was found in a swamp about five miles from his Summer home at Verbank.

Sheldon disappeared about 10 days ago. The condition of the body indicated that it had been in the swamp for several days.

The discovery of more than $200 and a watch in Sheldon's coat and vest, which were found about 20 feet from the body, caused county officials to discard theories of foul play. Several letters and a fire insurance policy, all apparently undisturbed, were also found in his pockets.

Coroner John A. Card, who with Dist. Atty. Allen S. Reynolds and Under Sheriff C. Fred Close, investigated the case, asserted that death had been accidental and caused by exposure.

It is believed that Sheldon wandered into the marsh a [illegible] ago last Thursday, when he disappeared from his home at Verbank. The underbrush where the body was found, indicated he apparently had struggled to extricate himself from the swamp, but had become exhausted.

Discovery of the body ended an intensive search. County officials and more than 100 residents were combing the vicinity of Verbank when the search came to an end.

Miss Florence Sheldon, of No. 4 Llewellyn road, Montclair, N. J., a daughter of Sheldon, who had offered a reward of $300 for finding his body, came here to claim the remains.

GIRL BORROWS $1 FOR BREAKFAST; ENDS LIFE

New York, June 23.—Florence Wilson borrowed a dollar to buy breakfast, then returned to her furnished room and killed herself by turning on the gas. An open bankbook on the table showing that in the last six months she had drawn in small amounts all of her $1,800 savings told the story of her despair. She had lost her job and could not find another.

CITY TO MAKE TOTS IMMUNE TO DIPTHERIA

Free Treatment for Children of Pre-School Age Starts Today

For the first time in the history of the health department children in the pre-school age will be immunized against the ravages of diphtheria under the direction of Dr. John A. Ceconi, city epidemiologist.

The health department today started a campaign throughout the city to protect children between six months and five years of age against diphtheria, especially the children who are to enter school at the fall term in September.

250,000 ALREADY TREATED.

Dr. Ceconi's staff of physicians and nurses have given over 250,000 treatments of immunization against diphtheria without one bad result.

It is suggestetd by the health department that private physicians in the city do this work in their regular practice. Many requests from parents have been received by the health commissioner to grant to their children of pre-school age the same protection that has been granted to the child in school life, which resulted in the campaign being inaugurated.

If parents cannot afford the attention of a private physician, arrangements have been made, by which they may be treated at school buildings on the dates stated below.

SCHEDULE OF TREATMENTS.

First, second and third treatments are as follows: On June 23, June 30 and July 7 at Comins, Dudley, Ellis, Mendall and Farragut schools, Roxbury; June 24, July 1 and July 8 at Lafayette, Lucretia Crocker, Nathan Hale and William Eustis schools, Roxbury; June 25, July 2 and July 9 at Tileston, Stoughton and Trescott schools, Mattapan, and Robert Swan, Dorchester; June 26, July 3 and July 10 at William E. Russell and Philips Brooks schools, Dorchester; Francis Parkman, Jamaica Plain and John D. Philbrick, Roxbury; June 27, July 11 and August 4 at Damon school, Readville, Fairmount and Henry Grew schools, Hyde Park and Sarah Greenwood, Dorchester; July 14, July 21 and July 28 at Andrews, Michelangelo, Hancock and Bowdoin schools, city proper; July 15, July 22 and July 29 Washington, Wendell Phillips, William Blackstone and Peter Faneuil schools, city proper; July 16, July 23 and July 30 at John J. Williams and Wait schools, city proper; Frothingham and Prescott schools, Charlestown; July 17, July 24 and July 31 at Blackinton, Emerson, Samuel Adams and Theodore Lyman schools, East Boston; July 18, July 25 and August 1 at Daniel Webster and Philip Sheridan schools, East Boston, and Choate Burnham and Cyrus Alger schools, South Boston.

BRITISH GUNS GET REDRESS FOR U. S.

Pekin, June 23. (A. P.)—Under threat that he would bombard the city of Wanhelen in Szechwan Province, the commander of the British gunboat Cockchafer, compelled the highest military leaders there to walk to the cemetery in full uniform behind the casket containing the body of Edwin S. Hawley, the American killed there by Chinese junkmen, and to attend the burial service for him.

Washingtton, June 23. (Universal)—The State Department was without information on newspaper reports that an American missionary had been killed in China and that the commander of a British gunboat had forced Chinese officials to attend the funeral.

The accuracy of the report was doubted, as such a happening, it was said, would be extremely unusual.

JINGO PRESS IS AROUSED BY JAP SLAYINGS

Publish Inflammatory Comment, Attemping to Link the Killings With Exclusion Act

Tokio, June 23 (A.P.).—Evidences of the keenest resentment against America broke out here after receipt of the news of the slaying of two Japanese near San Pedro last week, but with the arrival of more detailed dispatches, indicating, in the opinion of government officials, that the murders had no connection with the Japanese-American situation, excitement subsided somewhat.

The news of the slaying was displayed with the greatest prominence in all the newspapers.

Leading "jingo" publications appeared with inflammatory statements against America, prompted by the murders.

Police took special measures for the safety of American residents owing to the serious proportions that situation assumed until more complete advices were received.

Officials declared today that, in the absence of authoritative reports from official sources, it was unwarranted to connect the murders with the situation arising from passage of the Japanese exclusion measure of the immigration bill by the United States Congress.

A majority of government heads and of the press joined in urging self-restraint and patience.

While the more influential of the vernacular newspapers withhold editorial comment on the San Pedro affair, the "jingo" press, including the Kokumin, Yorozu, Yamato and Chuo, comment bitterly and at great length and quote indignant statements of nationalistic leaders.

WOMAN EXHIBITED TO HER 'SUITOR" AFTER BEING BEATEN

BOUND AND GAGGED BY OWN SEX

Filing of $75,000 Suit Brings to Light Tale of Abduction and Flogging in Woods

Alexandria, La., June 23 (Universal).—A suit demanding $75,000 damages, filed in the courts here, brought to light the details of how a pretty woman was overpowered and flogged by three other women.

The complaint was filed by Mrs. Lillian Bonnette, charming young married woman, against three popular Alexandria women, whose names are familiar in social circles of the State. They are Mrs. Gertrude D. Ball, wife of John Ball, wealthy merchant; Mrs. Amelia Ball Jordan, daughter of Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. Leslie Hatchett.

CIVIL SUIT FILED.

The Grand Jury indictments for the assault have already been returned in a criminal action, but the full details of the attack were not set out until the civil suit was filed.

Mrs. Bonnette was accused by the three women of being too friendly with Mr. Ball. According to Mrs. Bonnette's sensational story, she was kidnaped from her home by them, hurried to a wood in an automobile, there bound, whipped and stripped of her clothing. After the punishment had been inflicted she was brought back to town.

WOMAN'S OWN STORY.

In front of the Ball home Mr. Ball was called out and told: "Now look at your sweetie."

Here is Mrs. Bonnette's story as related to District-Attorney Dear, who will prosecute the criminal actions:

"I was in my home just outside of Pineville, recovering from the effects of an operation performed at the Baptist Hospital the latter part of January and was just able to move about my house on April 25, when, at about 3:30 p. m. while I was dressed in a nightgown, a knock came to my door. When I opened it I saw Mrs. John Ball, her daughter, Mrs. Amelia Ball Jordan and Mrs. Lessie Hatchett on the front porch.

BOUND AND GAGGED.

"I invited them in and excused myself so that I could slip on a kimona and slippers. They did not enter my home, but remained on the porch and when I returned they entered into a conversation with me of a trivial nature, when suddenly the three of them threw themselves upon me and after a struggle in which all three beat me with their fists, pulled my hair and scratched my face, they seized me and carried me to their automobile drawn up in front of my home, after tieing my hands together with a heavy cord. A handkerchief was tied over my mouth.

"My two children, a boy of seven and a girl of nine, during the attack on me, started crying and calling for help and I could hear their cries after I was thrust in the closed car. While I was being held in the car one of the women entered my home and took several articles, including a pistol belonging to my husband, a string of pearls and a fur neck piece, my property.

TORE OFF CLOTHING.

"When the car drove off, I did not know what was going to happen to me as I lay in the bottom of the car hog-tied, gagged and helpless. The car, driven by Mrs. Ball's daughter, went at a very rapid speed, and when it stopped I was dragged from the machine and forced into a skirt of Piney Woods, about three miles from my home.

"The women, when they had me out of sight of the highway, tore at my kimona and nightgown and practically tore them into threads, leaving me nude. They took turns in lashing me with a great rawhide quirt, bringing the blood at every stroke. Gagged by the handkerchief, I was unable to cry out as the bull whip cut into my flesh, once or twice the gag fell from my mouth and I cried out in agony, but it was immediately replaced and the beating continued.

BALL CALLED TO WITNESS.

"Under the terrific punishment I fell to the ground but this did not stop the fiends who were beating me.

"All that happened I do not know, for under the torture consciousness left me and I must have suffered other indignities of a most revolting nature.

"How long I was unconscious I do not know, but when I came back to my half-numbed senses, I was being carried to the automobile, thrown into the bottom of the car, still hog-tied. The machine was speeded up and when it stopped I found we were just outside of the Ball home.

"In full view of the house and while Mrs. Ball and her daughter were shouting to Ball to come out and see 'his sweetie,' and 'look at the woman you have been spending money on," and such terms, the three, particularly Mrs. Ball and her daughter began their assaults. What little clothes I had on were torn from me, leaving me naked."

SCENE OF KILLING IN EAST CAMBRIDGE.

While Leo Kelley was watching a wedding from the sidewalk at No. 137 Spring street, East Cambridge, near his home, five men drove up in a taxicab and one fired. Kelley, an innocent bystander, was wounded and taken to the Cambridge Hospital, where he died. He is shown in the inset at the right of the picture. The other man was his companion at the time, Daniel Coleman. Insult to a girl is supposed to have started the trouble. See story on Page 1.

WIFE FOUGHT TO HOLD MISSING MAN'S LOVE

Seeking information about his wife who has been missing a week, Fred Manton of No. 103 North street, Medford, has gone to New York to interview his former friend, John H. Robbins, automobile salesman of Malden.

The husband has also appealed to radio station WGI, where his wife was employed as secretary, to broadcast an appeal for information concerning her.

Robbins and the Manton family had been on good terms for a considerable time. When the automobile salesman and Mrs. Manton dropped out of view on the same day, a week ago, the families of each started search.

CALLED HIM ON PHONE.

The automobile salesman and Mrs. Manton had been friendly. On the morning the couple dropped out of view Mrs. Manton went to the Stratton garage, Malden, where she made inquiries for Robbins and finally had a garage employe call the salesman at his home in the Hotel Somerset, where he and his wife had been staying for several days.

Robbins left his wife, hurried to the garage and conferred with Mrs. Manton. That is the last seen of the couple.

Several days later Robbins telephoned his employers from New York. He asked that money be telegraphed him, as he had burned out a bearing of his car. He was sent $25.

HAS SEVERAL CHILDREN.

About the same time the mother of Mrs. Manton received a letter from her daughter, postmarked Salem. The daughter said she was going to remain away from home for a week or two until certain matters were straightened out at her home.

Mrs. Manton has been employed at the WGI broadcast station at Medford Hillside as secretary for some time. Robbins was formerly employed there.

Mrs. Manton is twice married. Her first husband, named Smith, died several years ago. She has a married daughter and several other children by this union.

The employers of Robbins declare that they have the utmost confidence in their employe and that they expect him back to work at any time. He frequently makes trips to New York and other places that keep him away for several days, according to the head of the garage where he is employed.

Mrs. Robbins, wife of the missing salesman, declares that she is anxiously awaiting her husband's return and that she will welcome him with open arms.

"I was married to John Robbins 12 years ago. It has been a happy 12 years. We have three children, a daughter 11 and two boys. How he could leave the children of whom he was proud and fond and do this thing I can't understand.

WIFE'S STORY.

"I was as happy as a woman could be until last winter. Then my husband began to just sort of drift out of himself and he wasn't the same man at all.

"Drifted is the word. He seemed to be in a daze most of the time. He was nervous. Often he told me that we had been invited to the Manton home. I wouldn't go.

"I had been economical and saving all during our married life. I got ahead a little more each year and had quite a sum in the bank. Then last winter my husband started on his queer ways. Before the spring had come, he had spent every last cent that I had scrimped and scraped together in 12 years.

"I couldn't believe he wasn't true to me, but something, I don't know what, kept telling me things weren't right. Late in May he took me to his mother's home in Maine. He left me there without a dollar and came down to Boston.

"I followed him. I got here on May 26 and from that day until last Saturday he was never out of my sight. It was a month of fighting for the love of my husband, the greatest struggle of my life.

"He sold our auto and got $500 for it. I knew that would go on good times. So I stayed with him until I made him spend it all. I made him buy over a $100 worth of clothes for our children.

CALLS MANTON HOME.

"To prevent his having money to spend, I made him live in hotels where expenses were high. We went to New York, then to Maine, and the $500 is gone

"But last Saturday, after we came home from New York, where we had been to look for a new position for him, I thought it safe to leave his side. I had been constantly with him night and day for a month.

"Then I learned he had been out on Saturday night. I called the Manton home and talked with Mrs. Manton's mother. I told her to have Mr. Manton call me. He did.

"Then I confronted my husband with the story.

Veteran Is Good Prospect As Auto Salesman

PASTOR'S MOTHER DIES AT HULL HOME

Mrs. Catherine C. McCarthy, mother of Rev. Thomas F. McCarthy, rector of St. Clement's Church, West Somerville, died at her home on Atlantic Avenue, Hull.

Mrs. McCarthy, who resided for the past 52 years in Somerville, was the widow of John McCarthy. In addition to Rev. McCarthy, three other sons survive. They are: John J., former alderman of Somerville; William T., former assistant district attorney of Middlesex county, and Francis X. Two daughters, Mrs. Catherine C. Shaw and Miss Elizabeth, also survive.

TOWN OFFICIAL HELD IN SHOOTING

West Bridgewater, June 23.—George Tucker, 48, superintendent of highways of this town, is under arrest charged with assault, with intent to murder, as a result of a shooting affair outside his home.

Avela Belmore, a neighbor, accused Tucker of walking into his yard while he was feeding chickens and firing a shotgun point blank at his head. Tucker denies that and says that he fired after the figure of a man who was running out of his yard after having slashed several automobile tires.

GALE POLLUTES WATER SUPPLY IN CHICAGO

Chicago, June 23.—One of the worst Summer storms in years swept almost the entire upper Mississippi River Valley, taking at least four lives and doing hundreds of thousands of dollars property damage.

Possibly the most serious menace to Chicago followed the storm, in threatened pollution of the drinking water supply. The storm reversed the Calumet River and caused sewage to be poured into Lake Michigan.

In this city, the downpour, accompanied by wind of nearly 40 miles an hour, flooded streets, tore down wires and seriously impeded traffic.

The steamer Saugatuck was disabled far out in the lake, with 700 passengers aboard, but rode out the storm with rescue craft brought along by S. O. S. calls.

Six government air mail planes were wrecked at Omaha, Neb., when the roof was blown off their hangar and the walls caved in.

A city fireman was killed by lightning, and a janitor, attempting to close a window, fell eleven floors to his death.

A panic ensued when a circus tent collapsed in South Chicago, trapping a thousand persons, mostly children.

WIFE LOSES IN RACE TO HALT SUICIDE

New York, N. Y., June 23.—Chauncey Eldridge, wealthy president of the Motor Lubricant Corporation, blew out his brains with a Mexican army revolver in the offices of the company, No. 17 East Forty-Second street while his wife was racing to the office to prevent him from killing himself.

Mrs. Eldridge arrived just after a policeman, who heard the shot.

She exhibited a telegram from Chicago which she had received only a few minutes before her husband took his life. It was from a relative who had received a wire from Eldridge that he was about to kill himself.

Wimbledon, Eng., June 23 (A.P.).—Vincent Richards, young American lawn tennis star, started brilliantly today his fight for honors in the Wimbledon tournament, defeating A. E. Dark, England, in the men's singles, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0.

GASOLINE PRICE WILL BE KEPT UP IN N. E.

Reduction in West and South Has No Effect Here, Says Standard Oil Official

A cut of one and two cents a gallon in the price of gasoline in the Middle West and South today, due to heavy stocks and competition, did not effect the New England market and probably will not, according to officials of big companies here.

"We have not made any cut in price today and do not anticipate making a cut," said one of the leading officials of the Standard Oil Company in this city.

Unfavorable weather, which resulted in small consumption of gasoline and consequent price reduction in New York State, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Alabama, Indiana and Mississippi.

UNION PROTESTS CONVICT PRINTING

Members of Boston Typographical Union 13, at a meeting in Franklin Union Hall, discussed at length preparations which, it is alleged, are being made to establish a printing plant at the State prison in Charlestown.

According to reports made to the union, plans for expending $40,000 on the plant have been prepared and pressman instructors have been advertised for.

It was reported by the committee investigating the matter for the printing trades that the Governor, when visited a short time ago, was represented as being in the dark regarding the proposition and all persons that should have knowledge of the alleged plan are maintaining the utmost secrecy.

The union voted to instruct its delegates to the convention of the Massachusetts State Branch, A. F. of L., to lay the whole matter before that body when it convenes in August in Boston.

SCENTED NOTES SENT TO LOEB BY WOMEN

Society Admirers Are Due for Questioning; Leopold Taught Bird Lore Privately

Chicago, June 23 (Universal).—Additional light on the characters of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, college youths charged with slaying little Robert Franks, is likely to be obtained by questioning wealthy society women.

Loeb is said to have received love notes from women since he has been incarcerated. An effort is being made to trace the writers of these notes. They are written in most cases on expensive stationery, perfumed and monogramed. The text of these notes would indicate that the writers were acquainted with Loeb but hesitated to make the fact known.

TAUGHT BIRD LORE.

Leopold, it has been learned, made as high as $150 a week entertaining wealthy society women. He taught them bird lore. He had classes in ornithology and he gave "private instructions."

The field and wood was the young ornithologist's classroom. If he maintained a central school the authorities have not learned of it. Apparently he engaged principally in field work. One of his classes was conducted through Jackson Park three days before his arrest in connection with the Franks case. To this class he is said to have announced he would leave shortly for Europe to study bird life on that continent. His classes would be resumed on his return, he said.

A dozen students of the University of Chicago, classmates of Leopold, will be questioned by State's Attorney Crowe. The State's Attorney will probably use their testimony at the trial in his effort to prove that Leopold is sane.

Doctors Bowman and Hulbert, alienists engaged by the defense to determine whether Leopold and Loeb are insane, were to resume their observations of the prisoners today, it is announed.

PRINCESS BONCOMPAGNI

Society in Rome is humming with reports that the Princess Boncompagni, formerly Margaret Draper of Boston and Washington, and heiress to a $5,000,000 estate from her father, the late General William F. Draper, formerly the American Ambassador to Italy, will soon marry again.

The princess recently procured an annulment of her marriage to Prince Andrea Boncompagni. The princess is seen constantly in Paris social affairs accompanied by Prince Ottoboni, who is a handsome Italian nobleman.

RESTAURANT IN NAVY YARD BURNS

Sailors and marines at the Charlestown navy yard assisted city firemen in extinguishing a fire which partially destroyed a restaurant in the navy yard grounds conducted by S. Hanane, a Jap. The fire was confined to the first floor of the structure. Police estimate the loss at $2,000. The restaurant is located in a stone building opposite the offices of the navy yard commandant.

ROBBER WORKS NEARBY WHILE POLICE HUNT

Beats Police Auto in Dash for Cover of Fenway Near Longwood

After a chase for nearly a half mile, a burglar escaped from Brookline policemen after he had entered the homes of two residents of the Longwood district who are away.

The home of Charles F. Cross of No. 16 Hawes street was entered by forcing a cellar window. Shortly afterward, Thomas Elliott, a caretaker, noticed the open window and telephoned to the station house. Patrolmen Watterson and Allen responded in the police automobile.

While the policemen were searching the Cross house, Elliott saw a man run out of the residence of Edwin P. Sheak, Jr., at No. 19 Beech road, adjacent to the Cross home, and scale an eight-foot fence.

Elliott called to the policemen and they pursued the burglar in the automobile down Colchester street, to Chapel street. The burglar vanished into the shrubbery of the Fenway, near Longwood railroad station, and made good his escape.

The burglar dropped a travelling bag, in which the policemen found silverware and three ladies dresses, belonging to the Sheak family. Entrance to that house was also gained by forcing a basement window. Nothing was taken from the Cross home.

HERTZOG DECLARES AGAINST SECESSION

Bloemfontein, South Africa, June 23.—General Hertzog, the prospective premier, declared today that the Nationalists expected labor support and admitted frankly that the Nationalists could not carry on a new administration without that support. He added:

"The Nationalists are without exception determined to stand by their pledge given to labor. I say positively that the Nationalists do not look upon secession as a matter of practical policies and are not likely to do so until the rest of the people and especially the mass of British people, are in favor of it."

'PEEK-A-BOO' SCORES HIT AT GAYETY

Something New in Burlesque Offered for Summer Patrons by Jean Bedini

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

YOU may take it from Jean Bedini—burlesque is stepping out, with a very definite upward movement. Mr. Bedini permitted this notion to trickle through the minds of a full house at the Gayety on Saturday evening, using his own personally conducted "Peek-A-Boo" as a good example of how burlesque should strut in high June temperature.

Bedini had the best of the argument by a margin of four very comical comedians and a flock of imported English dancing queens, trained to a hair in the art of keeping up with the orchestrated syncopation.

BURLESQUE UP TO DATE.

Let it be known at the start that "Peek-A-Boo" is primarily the Columbia Amusement Company's decorated burlesque show. In other words it's the next step forward in a form of musical entertainment which has already progressed very well, thank you, but which hasn't quite reached the heights to which Sam Scribner and his allied associates have fixed in the back of their astute heads.

In the case of "Peek-A-Boo" the top of the ladder appears to have been reached, for the show combines all of the dash and spirit of the old burlesque, with amplifications and appointments that carry it close to the character of the popular revue that annually blossoms on Broadway and then assails the rest of the country at prices far from encouraging. Of course, "Peek-A-Boo" doesn't cost so much to see but there is no cutting down in the measure.

Out of an evening of music and gaiety that stretched well into late hours you had Tom Gordon, Mark Germain and the two Landers boys to keep you from getting depressed, with Mr. Bedini himself taking a turn at things in a manner more finished than you had any right to expect. The imported young things from London looked the part, which is about all that was expected of them beyond an ability to keep up with the fanciful dancing numbers devised and directed by Allen K. Foster.

This in itself was something new to burlesque. Mr. Foster up to quite recently had done these things for Winter Garden shows, which accounts for a lot of color and dash that filled the Gayety on Saturday.

REAL TALENT SHOWN

Other splashes of real talent were thrown into the evening by Agnes Dewpsey and Jean White, thereby depriving Mr. Bedini's quartet of masculine comedians of a monopoly in the matter of glory.

Costuming that dazzled the eye and stage settings far beyond the expectations of those who take their musical revues at popular prices were contributing features of "Peek-A-Boo." The show ran into 18 lively scenes and presented novelties you were bound to enjoy. During most of the evening the moments were gay and sometimes hilarious, but now and then a romantic voice broke into the air with melody of the better kind. The musical score was contributed by Melville Morris and William Galvin and they have no cause for shame.

As an addition to our summer musical entertainment "Peek-A-Boo" will take very good care of itself.

DOROTHY DEVORE

Motion picture actress in one of her stunts which make the new film "Hold Your Breath" one of the greatest thrillers ever produced. It is being shown at Tremont Temple.

MARBLEHEAD YACHT PULLED OFF ROCKS

Vineyard Haven, June 23.—The schooner yacht Flying Cloud, sailing from New York and bound for Marblehead, ran aground off L'Hommedieu Shoal while passing through Vineyard Sound. She was pulled off the rocks later by the steamer Eben A. Thatcher, and proceeded apparently uninjured.

FILM THRILLER ALSO FULL OF LAUGHS

"Hold Your Breath" at Tremont Temple Stars Dorothy Devore

Here's a newspaper story in pictures—and it's a thriller.

"Hold Your Breath" will begin its Boston engagement at Tremont Temple tomorrow, with Dorothy Devore and Walter Hiers holding down the big parts and packing the film with action and laughs. And you'll probably hold your breath, for Miss Devore, masquerading as a reporter, trying to hold down her brother's job on a newspaper, discovered that she was a good bellboy.

She had a frightful experience, all of which is very humorous to everyone but the actress. Climbing the face of a twenty-story building was only one of the assignments she picked up, but it was enough.

"Hold Your Breath" will be given a preliminary run off for Boston newspaper men today, with the public showings beginning tomorrow.

ATLANTIC-PACIFIC TEA CO. HOLD PICNIC

Eleven hundred employes of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, employed at the Somerville warehouses, enjoyed their annual outing at Riverside park. The workers and their families were transported to the picnic grounds in motor cars and by train.

Field and water sports and dancing were features of the day's entertainment, while the picnic luncheon was served by the company.

The committee in charge comprised Sales Manager M. J. Meyer, Purchasing Agent J. D. Ringe, Supt. Philip S. Comstock, Chief of Operations H. L. Treman, Office Manager C. A. Armitage and L. W. Thompson, general superintendent south of Boston.

The outing committee was made up of R. S. Chapman, chairman; H. L. Treman, J. D. Ringe, M. J. Meyer, J. T. Collins, J. MacKay, C. A. Armitage, W. Walsh, George Ward, C. A. Bayer, Mr. Calhoon, C. H. Jandrin, and the Misses Ryan, Condon and Molloy.

SEEK IN VAIN FOR TRIO IN BOAT AFTER CRASH

Halifax, N. S., June 23 (I.N.S.).—The United States cutter Modoc arrived here today after a vain 48-hour search for three men from the Canadian liner Metagama, who put off in a small boat to ascertain the damage to the Italian steamer Clara Campus, after the two vessels crashed in a dense fog seven miles off Cape Race. The men were lost in the fog and hope for them has been abandoned.

No "static" with Socony

by The Veteran Motorist

© 1921, S. O. Co. N. Y.

THERE is nothing in the world so annoying to a good radio fan as static, and many are the efforts he makes, and the apologies he offers, to eliminate static. It cannot always be done. He must take what the air sends him, and do his best to tune in.

But motorists are under no necessity to endure "static" conditions with their motors. Lots of them do drift along, as it were, with balky engines, scored cylinders, and their crank cases full of a diluted lubricant, simply because they are too careless or too indifferent to know the remedy.

Furthermore, many of them just ask for a quart of oil. Others are penny-wise and pound-foolish, and attempt to save a few cents per gallon in buying at a low price; in the end they pay dearly for their indifference and their so-called economy. It costs real money to overhaul an engine that has gone "oil hungry".

No motor can function to its utmost efficiency unless it is fed the very best in motor oil, as well as in gasoline.

Socony Motor Oil is designed in various grades for all types of motors. It is sold specifically to give 100% service, and if properly renewed, the crank case drained approximately every 500 miles, there will be no stalling, no scoring—literally no "static". Don't accept a substitute.

For transmissions and differentials, use Socony Gear Compound or Socony Gear Oil. See the Socony Chart.

CANOEING JOY ENHANCED BY AMERICAN

M. A. Simmons, Radio Staff Expert, Gives All Day Concert on River

Several hundred canoeists enjoyed an all day radio outing on the Charles river yesterday.

The outing was arranged in order to demonstrate just how radio may be enjoyed on vacation or week-end outings. Also to indicate that the days of putting the radio set in moth balls every Spring has passed.

A motor boat was used to haul a score of canoes from Spring street up to The Oaks, some fourteen miles up the river. In the motor boat was M. A. Simmons, of the radio staff of the Boston American, and an eight-tube Baby Giant Superheterodyne, with loop and loud speaker.

The outing was under the auspices of the Bellevue Canoe Club.

Beginning at 10:30, half an hour after starting time, when the Tremont Temple started up, everyone on the outing was treated to virtually continuous music from the loud speaker. Many other canoes joined the cortege on the way up the river.

Altogether seven stations were picked up with sufficient volume to entertain the entire party. They were WNAC, WDBR (Tremont Temple), WBZ (Springfield), WJZ (New York), WGI (Amrad), WJAR (Providence) and WGY (Schenectady).

Several dead spots were found and one particularly good spot on the twelve-mile trip. In the good spot, WBZ was extremely loud. With the loop, the engine of the motor boat caused very slight interference.

Many other canoes with radio aboard were noted. The reflex with loop superheterodyne predominated.

BALLOONIST IN HOLLAND HEARS WBZ

Station WBZ, in Springfield, received a cablegram from Pilot Van Orman of the balloon Goodyear 2 after the flight over Holland in the international balloon race. It read as follows:

"Amsterdam, Holland, June 17, 1924.—Heard call letters 2.37 Monday morning. Pilot Van Orman."

WGY USING 107 METERS ON TESTS

WGY, on its experimental license 2XI is broadcasting on 107 meters, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights at 7:45; Friday night at 10:30, and Saturday evening, 8:30. The short wave station is transmitting the same program that is going out on 380 meters from WGY. It is probable that in a few weeks 2XI will work on a still shorter wave length. Notices will be given before the change.

HUNDREDS IN RADIO OUTING

AMERICAN EXPERT AND CHARLES RIVER LISTENERS

On top in motor boat is M. A. Simmons of the Radio staff of the Boston American with his wife and child. In bow is an eight-tube Baby Giant Superheterodyne with loop and loud speaker. Below are, left to right, Helen and Mary Sylvester and Marion Morgan of the Bellevue Club under the auspices of which Mr. Simmons conducted an all day radio outing. He towed a score of canoes fourteen miles up the river to The Oaks, where hundreds of others joined the party. The loud speaker was easily heard by all and the entertainment ranged countrywide.

WNAC WILL PUT COMEDY ON AIR TONIGHT

Copley Repertory Players Make Radio Debut in 'Hobson's Choice'

The Copley Repertory Players will go on the air tonight for the first time when "Hobson's Choice" is broadcast by WNAC, the Shepard Stores direct from the Copley Theatre.

B. Iden Payne, who originally directed the production of this comedy, and Whitford Kane, who created the original role of William Mossop, the bashful clerk, are both members of the company, and will star in this play.

The story concerns one Tobias Hobson, a carrier in Cambridge, England, at the time of Charles I. He kept a stable of forty horses, but always insisted that each person to hire an animal take the one nearest the stable door. In this way every customer was served alike.

Tobias also had several daughters, on whom he propose to work the same general plan for their marriage, but the idea proves a boomerang with amusing consequences.

In the cast is Miss Ray Darby.

The broadcast will begin at 8:10 on 278 meters.

Tune in for Her

RHY DARBY

The pleasing voice of this young actress will be heard through WNAC tonight when the Copley Repertory Players make their radio debut in "Hobson's Choice."

Radio Queries

I have been using five 199 tubes in a neutrodyne set. Had good results for a while, but they fell off, and in trying the tubes in another set, found they had dropped to about 1-25th of their original volume. I used 90 volts on the amplifier tubes and a six ohm rheostat. J. LaP.

The thorium on the filaments of 199 tubes will dissipate very rapidly if excessive plate or filament voltage is used. You should not use over 45 volts on plate, and a 25 or 30 ohm rheostat. Try burning the tubes without any plate battery for a few hours. If this fails, you will have to buy new ones.

Your two-tube Superflex is the only set I ever had that would tune out WGI. I am located within half a mile of their towers, and even wave-traps seem not to be effective. W.G.H.

When properly built, the Superflex is very selective. The diamond weave and spiderweb coils, however, are better in this respect.

My Superflex did not work well so I added eight turns to primary of first coil. Second coil does not change tuning. Adding eight turns to the primary of secondary produced howls in first tube. Got WNAC at 25 before adding turns to first unit primary, and at 40 afterward. P. L.

More turns on the primary of either unit would change the tuning only very slightly. If you got a change of 15 degrees, you probably added the turns to the secondary. If second unit does not tune at all, it means that the crystal is not working.

I have built several Supers with wonderful results, but am now stuck. The set is made with Simmons coils, 13-plate condensers, etc. I cannot get stations over 500 meters, although I get great volume on all stations but more so on short waves. You may be interested in knowing I had a Super tried out against a new six-tube Superheterodyne in my home and in three hours I picked up 21 stations on the Super against 11 on the Superheterodyne. W. A. B.

The coils that were specially made up for the Super and wound on a single form have given considerable trouble, and it may be that your difficulty is there. I should advise the use of diamond weave inductances, which can be purchased all ready for the Super.

Can Workrite neutroformers be used in the Super without changing the winding of the coils? J. P. C.

They have been used in the Super effectively, but it requires some juggling of the coil tip and the value of the condensers.

Can I use WD11's on the Super and get as much volume and distance? Radio Bug.

Dry cell tubes are not as effective on any set. They will give pretty good results on Super.

1—At times I get a loud cracking in my one-tube set. Could this be caused by regeneration of another set the aerial of which is parallel with mine and five feet above it. 2—How large a grid leak does the UV201A tube take? 3—Would a .0005 condenser keep me from getting stations over 400 meters? A. J. S.

1—Probably caused by some other kind of interference. 2—Four to six megohms. 3—Depends on inductance used with it.

1—Is oil a conductor of electricity? 2—Which is better for the Superflex, spiderweb or honeycomb coils? K. F.

1—Very poor. It is used in high-tension circuit-breakers to prevent arcing when the breaker is opened. In high-frequency currents, such as are used in radio, however, it might cause some dielectric losses. 2—Spiderweb are a little easier to handle.

ON THE AIR LAST NIGHT

By THE LISTENER

The locals, WNAC and WDBR, signed off early. Shepard's broadcast the evening service from Park Street Church, while Dr. Massee was heard from Tremont Temple via WDBR. I found no fault with the reception of either of these services, as the static was practically negligible.

About the only thing available in the early part of the evening was WJAR with the Capitol Theatre program. This came in quite well, and Roxy was right there with his usual good humor. One of the girls sang MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," and was accompanied by the orchestra.

To ponder over the beauty of this simple little piece makes me realize that a selection does not have to be intricate or difficult to sing in order to have an irresistible appeal. Artists please note.

To attempt long distance reception during these evenings, makes one realize the great many obstacles which stand in the way. First of all, we usually look to the West for our distance. In the West there is a difference of time of at least one hour, and on top of that, some of the places do not use daylight saving time, and this makes two hours difference.

Secondly, it doesn't get dark now till nine o'clock. This means that our Western friends will not have darkness until two hours after we have it, making it eleven o'clock here by the time darkness prevails over the Western part of the country. In consideration of this condition and that darkness is a necessary factor it is apparent that we fans will have to sit up later than we used to last Winter, to hear our long distance favorites.

However, it is not difficult to pick up the semi-distant fellows like WBZ, WJAR, and WGY. The New York stations ought to be considered semi-distant, but unfortunately the reception from New York city is erratic and not to be regarded as dependable.

During last evening WBZ had an excellent program of organ and violin music. From the Estey Organ studio I heard Anna Eichhorn play "Humoresque" by Dvorak. This number, while very well played, was only a small sample of Miss Eichhorn's beautiful work.

Mrs. Anna Louise Madigan, soprano, gave a group of numbers from WBZ which were a real treat. I heard her sing her last three numbers, which included "Elegie" by Massenet, and thought her voice decidedly pleasant to listen to.

Following Mrs. Madigan's recital, Gertrude Wood, contralto, and Eric Anderson, tenor, furnished an excellent program. Among the numbers on this program I enjoyed particularly were "If With All Your Hearts" from Elijah by Mendelssohn, and the group comprising "Marcheta" and "A Perfect Day." One thing worthy of comment lately from WBZ, is the excellent balance between piano accompaniment and the artists.

RADIO PENETRATES TO QUEER PLACES

Radio waves, once started, recognize no barriers. When the giant navy dirigible Shenandoah passed over Schenectady, WGY exchanged telephonic messages with Lieutenant-Commander Lansdowne. R. Raven Hart, an engineer, reported reception of these same signals at Puente del Inca, one of the highest points on the Andes in Argentina, a distance of 5,200 miles.

C. H. Ingels, construction engineer, reported reception of KGO, the Pacific Coast station at Hermit Camp, in the Grand Canyon, 3,300 feet below the rim.

In a test by officers of Scranton, Pa., coal mine signals from WGY were received at the lowest level in the mine, 480 feet beneath the surface and a half-mile from the foot.

SETS FOR VETS FUND NOW OVER $5,000

Over $5,000 has already been contributed in cash to the fund for buying radio sets for disabled veterans, and pledges and late contributions are expected to swell the total later to near the $50,000 mark.

This was announced today by W. Herrick Brown, of the Old Colony Trust Company, treasurer of the fund.

The total of $50,000 will be needed to furnish radio sets and accessories so that every veteran in every hospital will be able to enjoy radio entertainment. For all New England, $100,000 will be required.

CONTRACTORS FINISH WORK ON NEW HEARST BUILDING

The Hearst Building—the new home of the Boston American at Winthrop square—is almost ready for occupancy. After months of steady toil by a small army of workmen, the huge building at Otis and Devonshire streets has been entirely remodelled, in fact practically rebuilt, to provide this newspaper with the largest and finest newspaper building in New England.

An idea of its immense size can be had when it is known that its floor area totals 112,000 square feet, almost three acres. Its location provides daylight on practically all four sides. The site, rich in historical associations, is practically in the business centre of Boston.

Except for the last minute finishing touches, nothing now remains to be done before the work of moving in the mechanical equipment and office furniture is begun. Already a number of the huge presses have been housed in the remodelled structure. Among them is the largest and finest four-color newspaper printing press in the world.

To those familiar with the Winthrop square of years past, an almost startling transformation has been wrought by the changes incorporated into the Hearst Building. The appearance and entire character of the square has been noticeably improved by the imposing magnificence of the huge structure in its new, clean dress.

FRUIT OF LONG STUDY

Instead of a dilapidated old structure, cluttered with signs and discolored by the soil and weather stains of many years, the passersby see a strikingly handsome, massive building standing out as clean and bright as though the stones had been put in place only yesterday. The architectural design is such the building looks even more massive than it actually is.

In the interior the changes have been equally as great. Floor levels have been changed, partitions torn out, new stairways constructed and the entire arrangement changed to provide the maximum efficiency for every department.

Once in the new quarters every step in the production of this newspaper will be a step forward. The placing of the various departments has been planned to save steps and save time.

The arrangement is the result of months of careful planning, during which the experience of the Hearst organization in many other cities was studied so as to obtain the benefit, in this new building, of every improvement which had been worked out elsewhere.

ROOM FOR EXPANSION

The immense size of the structure makes it possible not only to provide ample quarters for the present staff, but also to anticipate the expansion which the years will bring. With the growth of circulation and the increase in other departments of the newspaper, additions to the staff will become necessary from time to time. This need has been fully considered and provided for.

Equally new and improved is the mechanical equipment of the new building. In the composing rooms all new steel type racks and imposing tables will be used. Additional linotypes have been added, and numerous improvements, such as electric heaters for the metal pots, obtained for those already in operation.

To the average man the work of transferring the various departments with all the equipment, without interruption to publication, would seem an almost impossible task.

COMFORTS FOR MEN

To those who will do the actual work of the moving, the task will be comparatively easy. Every piece of equipment has been assigned its new position in the new building. When the order is given to move, it will be dismantled, transferred and reassembled with surprising speed.

Ample provision has been made in the new Hearst Building for the hundreds of employes engaged in producing the newspaper. Ventilated lockers of special design have been provided for every person.

Daylight reaches practically every part of the five floors and a great part of the pressroom in the basement. A modern ventilating system which insures a steady supply of clean, pure air has been installed.

Sanitary facilities are exceptionally complete. No detail has been overlooked which would promote the efficiency or happiness of the employes.

ALL LOCAL WORK

In keeping with the policy of boosting New England products, every contract for the New Hearst Building was awarded to a New England contractor, and wherever New England products could be obtained, their use was demanded in the specifications. The granite columns of the main entrance were quarried and finished in New England. The flooring was brought here in the rough and completed by Boston craftsmen. The selection of office desks, lockers, in fact all the equipment, was made with the thought of putting into practice the Boston American's slogan: "Boost New England."

The entire plumbing system of the old building was ripped out and new up-to-the-minute facilities were installed to take care of the requirements of the new use. The fixtures used were furnished by the J. L. Mott Iron Works and the installation was done by F. D. Kirby, plumbing contractor, of No. 16 Park square, Boston. The Kirby organization is one of the most successful in Boston, having filled, in addition to the Hearst building contract, such contracts as the Province building, the Chamber of Commerce building, the new Studio building, Gillette Safety Razor buildings, Vose piano factory, Congress building and the National Union Bank building.

IMPOSING EXTERIOR

But little change was made in the exterior walls of the building. A beautiful new entrance, facing the square, was constructed with massive granite columns and symbolical coping. This granite was supplied, carved and erected by the estate of John Harrington of East Cambridge. The surprising transformation in the general appearance, however, is due to the thorough sand-blast cleaning to which every square inch of the exterior was subjected. All mortar seams were carefully pointed and the concrete skilfully tooled. This part of the work was done by the W. L. Waples Company of 7 Edgewood street, Roxbury.

All the old window frames were removed and new frames installed to give the maximum of glass surface. Thousands of square feet of plate glass for the windows were supplied by the Standard Plate Glass Corporation of Boston and Cambridge.

A NEW INTERIOR

Except for the floor beams and girders and the principal supporting columns, the interior is almost completely new. Two new Otis elevators have been installed. These are known as single wrap traction machines with a carrying capacity of 2,500 pounds, and a speed of 200 feet per minute. Another is arranged for dual control, with push button system and a speed of 150 feet per minute.

Yale hardware, supplied by J. B. Hunter Company, is used throughout the new building. This type of hardware has been supplied by the J. B. Hunter Company for many of the finest office buildings in Boston.

The walls were completely replastered, this work being done by Henry Klehm of No. 45 Bromfield street, Boston, who has had the plastering contract for many prominent buildings.

The stairways and all the interior wood finish, including the special finish for the publisher's office was installed by Graham and Cameron of 139-53 Border street, East Boston.

AMPLE OFFICE ROOM

The floor space has been laid out to provide ample floor space for the various departments of the newspapers. Modern daylight partitions separating the several departments on each floor and for the numerous private offices were supplied by James A. Glass of No. 99 Bedford street.

The painting, decorating and hardwood finishing throughout was done by the skilled craftsmen of the Albert D. Howlett Company of 110 Worcester street, Boston. The quality of this work is indicated by reference to some of the other buildings decorated by the Howlett Company, including the new home of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, the Lying-in Hospital and Nurses' Home, the Park Square Building and the new Chamber of Commerce building, as well as the residence and farm group of Mrs. R. W. S. Sears of Brookline, Mass.

FINELY EQUIPPED

The equipment of the building represents the latest development for newspaper plants. The heating and power piping and ventilating system, important factors in promoting efficiency, were installed by McLean & Cousens Company of Chandler and St. Charles streets, Boston.

For protection against fire loss, Rockwood Automatic Sprinklers, approved by all insurance companies, were installed by the Rockwood Sprinkler Company of No. 141 Milk street.

To carry the papers from the presses to the mailing room, ten electric dumb waiters of a new type with automatic push button control and automatic stop devices, were designed and installed by the Beckwith Elevator Company. These dumb waiters are all steel, with a capacity of 100 pounds of paper and a speed of 150 feet per minute.

Towels for employes' use will be supplied by the Boston Towel Supply Company.

OTHERS WHO HELPED

All the heavy trucking and rigging, the moving of the presses and other machinery and equipment is the work of the organization of C. Bowen. Despite the enormity and intricacy of the task it was accomplished without a hitch.

The purpose of the new building is to print a newspaper. An essential, even if minor item, in the production are the printers' rollers. To insure the best printing, through proper ink distribution, Globe Rollers made by the Globe Printers' Roller Company of No. 154 Purchase street, Boston, are used exclusively.

Despite the size of the building it is not possible to keep any reserve quantity of paper on hand. All but the immediate needs for the various editions are storaged at the Mystic Stores, Charlestown, and the E Street Stores, South Boston, of the Terminal Wharf and Railroad Warehouse Company.

Special Lockers for Employes' Clothing

Because of the semi-public character of a newspaper building, special provision is necessary for the safekeeping of the street apparel of the employes. In the new Hearst building, 450 special designed lockers have been provided. These lockers were installed by Hart & Hutchinson of No. 141 Milk street, Boston.

The walls of these lockers are of extra thickness. Their design provides a constant circulation of ventilating air. They are absolutely vermin proof. Each is provided with an individual lock and key. The lockers are of extra size, giving ample room for an entire change of clothing, as is required in the work of many of the departments.

OFFICE DESKS ALL MADE IN NEWENGLAND

The office furniture in a newspaper plant is subjected to much harder usage than in the ordinary business office. To stand up under the constant day and night service it must be of exceptional construction.

In choosing the furniture for the offices in the new Hearst Building, the contract was awarded to the Doten-Dunton Company, of No. 32 Franklin street, whose factory is located in Cambridge. This organization is one of the best known office furniture manufacturers in the United States and one in which every New Englander can take justifiable pride. Its list of clients includes many of the largest banking and commercial institutions in the country.

For the publisher's office furniture of special design has been selected. It has been fashioned with the sterling craftsmanship for which the Doten-Dunton Company is famous, and is undoubtedly one of the finest groups of furniture to be found in any newspaper office in America.

The furniture for the other offices is of the Durocraft grade, manufactured by this company. It is sturdy and fine-looking, just the type needed for a first class newspaper office.

'MINUTE MEN' MAKE GOOD ON CONTRACTS

No mention of the new Hearst building would be complete without tribute to the contractors and subcontractors whose intelligent efforts and co-operation with the architects have built a new landmark for Boston.

The entire work of remodelling the building was under the direction of C. A. Dodge Company. This firm was selected for the task because of its wide experience, proved ability and reputation for exacting faithfulness in the performance of its contracts. The results have proved the wisdom of the selection. Working under the direction of this firm were the sub-contractors and the supply houses whose materials were chosen for use in the building.

RIGID FOUNDATIONS

Because of the use to which the building was to be put, it was deemed essential to secure the best contractors and the best materials for the purpose which could be obtained, regardless of cost. In the publication of a newspaper, time is such an important factor that delays or interruptions due to the use of any doubtful material or workmanship must be avoided.

To house the numerous presses of this newspaper it was necessary to excavate below the old cellar floor, strengthen the foundations and build floors and massive reinforced concrete press bases under the entire building. This particular work was completed by Adams-Pond Company, concrete engineers and contractors and foremost experts in concrete construction in New England. As a result of their efforts the fast-printing web presses will rest upon beds of utmost stability which will practically eliminate vibration to minimum.

SPECIAL FLOORING

New floors were laid throughout the entire building. Over 100,000 feet of hard maple flooring of special thickness was used. The lumber from which this flooring was made was brought in the rough from the Adirondack Mountains by the Downes Lumber Company of Boston. After being carefully air dried for months, it was put in a Sturtevant Kiln and dried to a uniform moisture content of not over 7 per cent. Such stock has a usual moisture content of 40 per cent. After being kiln dried the stock was sawed to size, worked into flooring in the Downes shops and delivered to the job.

Boston Engraving Concern Has Rapid Rise

The same process by which illustrations are reproduced in a newspaper are employed for the reproductions of illustrations in commercial printing. But instead of making engraving plates for one type of newspaper, to be printed in one color on one type of newspaper press, commercial printing involves the preparations of engravings of various types for printing on many kinds of paper on many different kinds of presses.

The making of commercial photo-engravings demands wide experience and expert knowledge of just what certain types of engravings will produce under these widely varying conditions.

Among the organizations which have made a conspicuous success in this difficult work is the well-known firm of Donovan & Sullivan Engraving Company of 235-237 Congress street, Boston. Although established only a few years, it has become one of the largest engraving plants in New England, and is equipped to render fine service on engravings of all types, halftone or line, in one, two, three or four colors.

New Kiln Method Dries Flooring in 2 Weeks

The Sturtevant Kiln in which was dried the special maple flooring used in the new Hearst Building is a marvel of human ingenuity. It is owned by the Downes Lumber Company of Boston.

In the operation of the kiln a test piece of the lumber is first placed in an electrically operated test oven, baked and weighed several times while ingenious charts show the moisture content during the various stages and the temperature and the time required for the desired moisture content. Then the lumber is placed in the steam-heated kilns, each piece carefully spaced to allow free circulation of air, and the superheated air forced in at one end while the moisture laden air is exhausted from the other.

Under the old methods approximately six weeks were required to dry lumber. Under the new way but two weeks is needed and the method insures lumber of absolutely even moisture content throughout. Temperatures of 138 to 160 degrees are employed in this kiln method.

3 ARMY OFFICERS ARE TRANSFERRED

The following transfers of army officers are announced at Army Base, South Boston:

Major Clyde E. Eastman from Citizens' Military Training camp, recruiting, to the 94th Division, O. R., with offices in the Customs House; Lieutenant Lawrence M. Crannell, Ordnance, O. R., from New Haven to Springfield for training with procurement activities; Lieutenant Charles S. Reed, Ordnance, from Watertown Arsenal to Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, N. J.

BRAZILIAN BOY WALKS 2,485 MILES

Santiago, Chile, June 23.—After having tramped 2,485 miles from Rio Janeiro, a Brazilian Boy Scout named Alvaro Da Silva arrived here. He was given a reception by the Boy Scout brigades of Santiago and later was received in audience by President Alessandria.

ALLEGED AUTO THIEF ARRESTED

Charles Boyce, arrested by the Brookline police while trying to dispose of an automobile, alleged to have been stolen in Washington, D. C., started for the Capital, in custody of Sergt. Tobbs of Washington police.

The trip is being made in the automobile, which Boyce was trying to sell to second-hand dealers on Commonwealth avenue, who were suspicious when they saw the bill of sale dated from Virginia while the number plates on the car were from the District of Columbia.

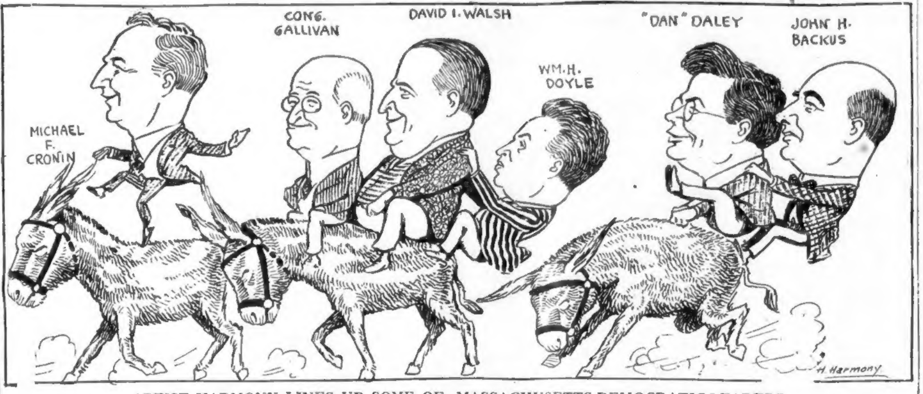
BRYAN FLAYS G. O. P. AS 'FRIEND OF RICH' IN OUTLINING PLATFORM

BAY STATE DELEGATES FLOCK TO NEW YORK



ARTIST HARMONY LINES UP SOME OF MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRATIC LEADERS

LEAGUE TO FIGURE IN PLANKS

Great Commoner Scores Mellon, Tax Reduction and Republican Tariff

By W. J. BRYAN.

New York, June 23 (I.N.S.).—The platform comes first, the planks are being framed. There will be a number of these planks which will deal with the question of international co-operation, and they range all the way from an indorsement of the League of Nations straightout down through various modifications, qualifications and reservations to a plank providing for a referendum on the question whether the United States desires to enter the League upon such terms as the Senate may prescribe.

Wm. J. Bryan.

The referendum is a popular idea, democratic in principle and difficult to oppose. Mr. McAdoo has announced himself in favor of leaving the question to the American people. The initiative and referendum (they generally go together) have been adopted in several States.

Oregon in the far West led off and has gathered about her a very considerable group of progressive States.

VIEWS ON REFERENDUM.

One Southern State, Arkansas, has adopted the initiative and referendum —that is the farthest south the referendum has yet reached. It is popular on the Pacific coast, and has been adopted in Nebraska, Missouri and Ohio, and even in Massachusetts.

President Wilson, after opposing the initiative and referendum for many years, became an advocate of the reform, and President Roosevelt, after opposing it in Oklahoma's constitution, recommended it in Ohio.

The idea is in force in the parliamentary governments of Europe, although somewhat clumsily entwined with the popularity of individuals and party prejudice. The referendum, as employed in this country, presents the issue distinctly and alone, so that the voter cannot approve or disapprove without expressing himself on any other question or any person.

It has been found of great value in the issuance of bonds, the granting of franchises and the amending of constitutions. It is difficult for a Democrat to oppose a proposition that gives the sovereign voters a chance to decide questions that concern them.

It is possible that the so-called peace plank may combine a general statement of the nation's position as embodied in the plank which I have given to the public and the referendum proposition.

RAPS PRESENT TARIFF.

There is only one side to the tariff proposition. The historic attitude of the Democratic party is against a protective tariff. There were formerly a few weak-kneed tariff reformers among the Democrats in the manufacturing States, but the prosperity that followed tariff reduction under the Wilson administration exposed the shallowness of the arguments of protectionists and convinced the country that panics do not necessarily follow tariff reduction.

The present tariff law is the sum of abominations; it lays a burden estimated at four billions a year upon the consumers of the United States, four-fifths of which goes into the pockets of protected interests.

High tariff will be executed "without benefit of clergy" and attention may be called to the fact that the Republicans in their vociferous plea for tax reduction carefully avoided a reduction in the burden that goes into the pockets of the beneficiaries of protection and confined their efforts to reductions that diminished only such taxes as go into the treasury.

But it is the income tax that furnishes the easiest proof of the Republican party's partiality toward the rich. The Mellon plan was the boldest iniquity attempted in many years. It was so notoriously unfair that forty Republicans in the House joined the Democrats in rejecting and seventeen Republicans joined the Democrats in substituting the rates of the Democratic substitute.

Al E. Smith

Wm. G. McAdoo

There were enough progressive Republicans in the Senate to enable the Democrats to convert the revenue bill into a Democratic measure. Mr. Mellon wanted to fix the maximum surtax at 25 per cent., but the Democrats, with the aid of the progressive Republicans, fixed it at 40 per cent.

LAUDS DEMOCRATS.

No other Cabinet officer has ever been kicked about and cuffed and rolled in the dust as Secretary Mellon has been, and yet he was given a great ovation at Cleveland. He will get anything but an ovation at the hands of the Democrats.

As a result of his efforts of two years ago to shift the burden of taxation from the rich to the poor, the Republicans lost 76 seats in 1922, while the Democrats did not lose one.

The record made by the Democratic senators and members of the present Congress was the most progressive made in many years. The convention cannot fail to indorse that record, and when it does so, it will indorse the record of the progressive Republicans also, the only indorsement that the progressive Republicans have received this year.

The delegates are pouring in like an army with banners. May they all return happier than they come.

M'ADOO'S FOES FIGHT FOR PLANK AGAINST KLAN

By JAMES R. NOURSE.

New York, June 23 (Universal).—A strong plank, denouncing the Ku Klux by name, and declaring that Democrats who belong to it should be read out of the party, was agreed upon by anti-Klan leaders to be written into the Democratic platform.

Here is the text of the plank:

"We condemn as opposed to the genius of free government secret political societies of any kind whatsoever, wherever any such society undertakes to destroy free political action and foster racial and religious hatreds.

S. M. Ralston

Carter Glass

"We denounce its activities as contravening the spirit if not the letter of the Constitution, and as a pregnant menace to the perpetuity of American institutions.

READ OUT OF PARTY.

"We declare that no member of such a society can justly claim to be a disciple of Thomas Jefferson.

"We pledge the Democratic party to oppose the activities of the Ku Klux Klan, or any similar organization which undertakes to control or interfere with free political action or due process of law."

This plank was drafted by Edmund H. Moore, of Ohio, who managed the campaign for James M. Cox in the San Francisco convention. He wrote it after conferences with George E. Brennan, Illinois National committeeman, and others.

CLAIM MAJORITY VOTE.

The certainty that such a plank will be incorporated into the platform is forecast by a poll that shows the anti-Klan forces are in a majority in the convention. They claim at least 530 votes, or more than half the convention.

The agreement for a direct pronouncement on the Klan issue is a challenge that McAdoo and his supporters wil have to face. McAdoo stands for a mild criticism of any attempt to interfere with the constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion; he is opposed to a forthright declaration against the Klan itself.

O. W. Underwood

John W. Davis

BRYAN EVADES LEAGUE.

William Jennings Bryan arrived carrying in his pocket several planks that he will propose for the platform.

The most important is one that would dispose of the entire League of Nations and World Court proposal, without mentioning either by name, thus skilfully avoiding any controversy on the point of endorsing or failing to endorse the old Wilson league.

Bryan has also a plank on the subject of campaign contributions.

He will fight for a strong "bone dry" declaration in the platform, besides having a number of other suggestions which he will present to the committee. He xpects to be the Florida representative on the committee.

Bay Staters Arrive After Hectic Night on Boat

By JO SWERLING

New York, June 23.—That part of the Massachusetts delegation which made the trip to New York by boat arrived at headquarters in the Belmont today somewhat subdued in spirit, following a celebration aboard ship which lasted until early morning.

Mayor James M. Curley, who had preceded the gang in an auto, was waiting at headquarters, and the first intimation that he had of the arrival of the delegation was the hoarse rendition of "Sweet Adeline" by a hardy quartet which had been singing the song steadily for the preceding eight hours, having stayed up all night on the boat.

Sen. D. I. Walsh

The night before had been an evening of hot music, wet wassail and untrammelled speech making. For the most part the oratory had been of the soap-box, spread eagle variety, but a different note was struck when Frank Finneran of the Massachusetts Democratic Club, shouting to his audience on the aftdeck, cried:

"This delegation is on its way to New York to beat McAdoo, the kerosene K. K. Kandicate."

NOT SOLID FOR SMITH.

Finneran found this statement received with a disturbing stillness. Then a voice shouted: "Strike that from the record." Another yelled: "I'm for McAdoo, cut out that stuff."

While there were boosts aplenty for Al Smith en route, it was apparent that McAdoo had his friends in the delegation and it is apparent that the Massachusetts delegation is by no means solid for the Governor of New York.

The trip to New York was a hilarious success. It sounded and behaved for all the world like the old-fashioned Democratic clambakes and outings, in which dignity is cast to the winds.

The high nabobs of the delegation, Curley, Walsh, Lyman, Ely, Gaston, Susan FitzGerald and others, had gone ahead, either by train or auto and, in the absence of these, John F. "Honey" Fitzgerald, took charge of the party and succeeded in turning it at one point into a Fitzgerald rally.

TURNED INTO "FITZ" RALLY.

It wasn't until after dinner that things began to liven up. Then, with a jazz band blowing blue music and Fitz acting as major domo, the party got under swing.

Fitz removed his straw lid, struck his favorite pose, warbled "Sweet Adeline," while his friends and cohorts listened, hushed and respectful. When he wound up there was a frenzied ovation which would have paled the face of Chaliapin.

The meeting on the aftdeck from that point became a Fitz rally and when one of the speakers spoke of "John F. Fitzgerald, our next governor," there was a chorus of complaint from a number of listeners.

Michael A. and Mrs. O'Leary.

There were plenty of Curley fans who resented any effort at State booms in the absence of the Mayor and were not slow to voice their disapproval.

Whitfield Tuck of Winchester took the rostrum and delivered an impassioned address in behalf of Colonel Gaston for Vice-President and, in case of a Smith-McAdoo deadlock, for President.

Judge Riley, Jerry Watson, Dan Daly, Mrs. Gtrtrude Hays O'Leary and her husband, and other familiar Democratic figures were introduced by Fitz and, between songs, orated on their familiar topics.

WITH M'ADOO TO 'LAST DITCH'

New York, June 23 (I.N.S.).—Dedicating himsel fanew to the "recovery of this government from privileges and debauchery," William G. McAdoo today greeted the delegates from the Western States and exacted from them a pledge to stick with him in his efforts to secure the Democratic presidential nomination "to the last ditch."

Ac McAdoo launched into his attack on moneyed interests and class rule, some one in the crowd yelled: "Don't forget Teapot Dome, Mac."

"You bet I won't," McAdoo shouted. "We'll soak the Republicans for that dirty scandal from now to election day."

The demonstration for McAdoo was spontaneous and impressive. Stepping from the "McAdoo Special," delegates from nine Western States, headed by California and preceded by two bands, paraded to the Vanderbilt Hotel. McAdoo made his appearance on a temporary platform built out of a first floor window and before the demonstration had subsided traffic was completely blocked.

The Californian again paid his respects to the "hostile press of New York." He warned his audience against statements that McAdoo delegates, after the first few ballots, would go over to another candidae.

"Never," shouted the crowd. "We are with you to the last ditch."

"That's right, my friends," McOdoo replied. "You didn't come here to betray a trust; you came to dedicate one."

G. O. P. WILL BE INDICTED, SAYS DANIELS

By JOSEPHUS DANIELS
Secretary of the Navy in President Wilson's Cabinet.

NEW YORK, June 23 (Copyright by Universal)—No, Mr. New Yorker, you are wrong and Nicholas Murray Butler is responsible for your unworthy thought of the delegates to the National Democratic convention, arriving to name the next President of the United States.

Josephus Daniels

It may be some could be persuaded to wet their whistles with a concoction a little more alcoholic than prescribed in the Volstead act, but the big bulge in their hip-pockets is not a flask. Mr. Butler will have to think again.

If you have any doubt as to what is in the package the delegates carries in his hip pocket, go up to him and examine it. You will find it is not a flask, but something that may prove more deadly to Republicans.

Every delegate has written a platform or planks and they are being carried in the hip pocket.

The reason men carried pistols and flasks there was so they could get at them quickly in an emergency. That is why they now so carry platforms or planks. They may be needed at any moment.

The platform the Democrats will adopt will bear no resemblance to any other ever written.

In fact, it will not be a platform at all. It will be a bill of indictment with counts of the crimes of omission and commission by the Harding-Coolidge administration.

Maryland for Ritchie

New York, June 23.—The Maryland delegation issued a statement today declaring its energies would be devoted to "convincing the convention of the availability of Governor Albert Cabell Ritchie" for the Democratic presidential nomination.

SYRUP PEPSIN
And so do the children

Some Families Are Never Ill

FORTUNATE are the children whose parents fully realize the seriousness of constipation. Hospital records prove that 75 per cent of all disease originates in bowel obstruction, or constipation. Young children cry because of it; school children are hampered in their studies; grown people are made 25 per cent less efficient; elderly people's blood pressure increases 28 per cent. Realizing this Mrs. Carrie Moss of 1714 Church st., Lynchburg Va., Mr. Louis C. Grahl of 1569 Winton ave., Lakewood, Ohio, and innumerable others, give a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first sign of constipation, and have no sickness among their children.

Largest Selling Laxative

Every up-to-date family medicine chest should contain a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and palatable aromatics, a prescription written 30 years ago by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine 47 years. You can buy a bottle in any store where medicines are sold, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. We guarantee that if you will give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a child or for a few nights to an adult it will relieve any case of constipation no matter how chronic, or your money will be refunded.

10 Million Bottles a Year

Use it once and you will never again take coal-tar drugs in candy form, calomel or salts. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable laxative free from opiates and narcotics. It can be safely given to infants, yet it effectively moves the bowels of adults. It acts gently; does not cramp or gripe. Keep it in the house and use it for any indication of bowel obstruction such as constipation, biliousness, torpid liver, dyspepsia, pimples and like skin eruptions. Give it early and it will break up a fever or a cold overnight. A spoonful proves it.

BARING TO FACE WIFE IN COURT

Trial of Strange Poison Plot Case Opens Today in White Plains

White Plains, N.Y., June 23.—Clarence O. Baring, charged with having attempted to murder his wife by introducing poison and disease germs into her food, went to trial today.

Of more than forty witnesses who have been summoned, twenty seven are to testify for the prosecution. District Attorney Rowland said that Mrs. Baring would be [illegible] prosecution witness. Baring's attorney, Charles E. Long, said the defendant would take the stand.

It was expected that the entire first day of the trial would be taken up in the selection of a jury.

Baring's wife alleges [illegible] poisoned her with arsenic [illegible] disease germs at the same [illegible] he was making ardent love to [illegible] and playing a gay part in the social life of White Plains.

NUMEROUS DELAYS.

The trial follows numerous delays obtained by Baring's [illegible] Charles E. Long. Only the persistent efforts of District Attorney Rowland, prosecuting the case, prevented its delay until Fall. Baring is out on $25,000 bail. He spent weeks in White Plains jail before his counsel made any effort to have him released.

The trial will probably begin without the mystery surrounding Mildred E. Beam, vivacious, dark haired young school teacher, [illegible] clear. Mrs. Baring has accused her husband of being unduly friendly with Miss Beam, who has [illegible] in hiding ever since [illegible] April 25 after his trip with a woman to Norfolk, Va.

MISS BEAM MISSING

Through friends Miss [illegible] assured District Attorney Rowland she would come forward to testify [illegible] when needed, but she has [illegible] failed to live up to her promise.

The charge of the prosecution is that Baring for months fed his wife arsenic and the cultures of [illegible] influenza, scarlet fever and pneumonia. A trap was set for him and he was under surveillance by State troopers when he appeared at a hospital here and received diptheria cultures under the name of C. Barnes.

BRIDAL PAIR IN AUTO CRASH

Honeymooner Hurt as 3 Cars Collide: 2 Are Killed in Other Accidents

Two men were killed and nearly 100 men, women and children injured in automobile accidents over the week-end and today.

The honeymoon trip of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burke of Haverhill nearly ended in tragedy today when Burke's car was in a collision with [illegible] other machines in Middleton [illegible].

The Burke car [illegible] two sedans [illegible] Walter Gra[illegible] of Boston [illegible] William Col[illegible] of Salem [illegible] were injured and shaken [illegible] was removed to Salem hospital. Burke and his [illegible] suffered from shock and slight cuts.

FOUR HURT IN SUDBURY

Four persons were removed to the Marlboro Hospital after a collision Sunday in Sudbury. The injured are Mr. [illegible] Dooin and two [illegible] of Brookline and Miss Helen Cronin, also of Brookline. Dennis Doolin, who was driving his car, was slightly injured on the head.

Robert Harrison of [illegible] injured when his milk wagon was struck by a machine driven by [illegible] Spen[illegible] of Lynn, who was [illegible] on the charge of driving while intoxicated.

Mrs. Louise Sampson of [illegible] don street, East Boston, was injured when the machine [illegible] which [illegible] collided with a [illegible] car in [illegible] street.

Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible] of [illegible] was [illegible] from a motorcycle in [illegible].

WOMAN'S LEG BROKEN

An automobile containing [illegible] civilians and three [illegible] turtle pinning the five under it when a tire burst while the machine was proceeding [illegible] Atlantic [illegible] the Metropolitan parkway in Quincy. Gordon Hall, Lee Wood and [illegible] Wool, attached to [illegible] the Charlestown Navy Yard, and Eugene Silva of Somerville were the injured.

Mrs. Mary Moriarty of No. [illegible] Ellison street, Quincy, was struck by an automobile in Quincy. Her leg was broken.

Police of East Boston are searching for occupants of a machine which plunged forty feet over a cliff from Gladstone street to Leyland street, East Boston, early today. The car was demolished. The eight passengers left the scene after the crash. The car is believed to have been stolen.

CROWDS ATTEND FETE OF ST. JOSEPH'S GUILD

A baby show, doll carriage parade, band concert, dancing and athletic events are but a few of the features of the gala program carried out at Ronan Park, Dorchester, today by St. Joseph's Guild for the Aged. A record crowd came early and indications were that many dollars would pour into the treasury by nightfall. The affair is being given to aid the building fund for a new home. Mrs. Hugh Bradley is president of the Guild. Mrs. M. B. Furlong, Mrs. Leo Christian and Loretta Greene are members of the entertainment committee.

GOMPERS, IMPROVED, TO ATTEND MEETING

New York, June 23.—The condition of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was said by officials of the Lenox Hill Hospital, where he has been recovering from a nervous breakdown, to be sufficiently improved to permit his attendance at a labor conference this afternoon. The aged labor leader's illness, it was learned, was caused by overwork. He entered the hospital last Wednesday.

THINK SON KILLED PARENTS THEN SELF

Langhorne, Pa., June 23.—Official investigation was begun today to determine the circumstances surrounding the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Gillman and the death of their son Clarence, following the finding of all their bodies in their farm house at Woodside. State police believe the son killed his parents and then took his own life.

TWO SHOT AS DRY MEN AND TOURISTS BATTLE

Greenville, S. C., June 23.—E. L. Ivey and Herndon Thomas, Atlanta business men, were shot on a road near here today in what they said was an exchange of bullets between Federal prohibition agents and a party of tourists. The officers brought the wounded men here for medical attention.

The victims asserted the officers blocked their automobile in the road and that one of them seized a can of water on the seat. [illegible] who they thought were [illegible] came up and opened fire and the fire was returned.

2 AMERICAN BISHOPS NAMED BY POPE PIUS

Rome, June 23 (A.P.)—Pope Pius today appointed Rt. Rev. Francis Kelley, founder of the Catholic Extension Society, as Bishop of Oklahoma, and the Rev. Richard O. Gerow, rector of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Mobile, Ala., as Bishop of Natchez.

THREE NEW FRENCH RECORDS ARE MADE

Paris, June 23.—Three new French records were established at the final Olympic tryouts for the French team, and one of these was lowered twice. Clement clipped 1 minute 50 seconds off the 10,000-metre walk, covering the distance in 49 minutes 58 1-5 seconds.

Zaidin threw the hammer 37 metres 33 centimetres, adding two metres 5 centimetres to the record.

Andre Mourlon, the French champion, and De Grelle, in winning their heats, bettered by one-fifth of a second the time for the 200-metre dash, running it 2[illegible] feet, and later Mourlon won the final in 21 3-5, again lowering the national mark.

JOHNSON AND SHARKEY READY FOR BELL IN BOUT TONIGHT

VICTOR TO TAKE ON GIBBONS

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Sharkey

JACK SHARKEY of Roxbury, whose ambition is to emulate the ring feats of the immortal John L. Sullivan, will swap tremendous punches with Floyd Johnson, mighty Iowan, in a ten-round heavyweight battle at the Suffolk A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

It is the most important heavyweight ring contest booked for this city since Sam Langford and Gunboat Smith battled at the old Boston Arena, ten years ago.

The winner of tonight's contest will be matched to clash with Tom Gibbons in a tussle at Braves Field, provided the St. Paul marvel accepts a $15,000 offer made to him by Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk Club.

Sharkey, natural fighting man as fast as a middleweight, terrific puncher, and bubbling over with confidence, is the leading ring star in New England today. He will try to win back ring prestige for this part of the country by his ability to knock out his opponents with smashing left hooks to the jaw, followed by right hand wallops to the same spot.

SHARKEY, twenty two years of age, has engaged in [illegible] bouts. He has won eight [illegible] of them by knockouts. [illegible] the only man who ever went the [illegible] with Sharkey. The former [illegible] later knocked out [illegible] rounds.

Sharkey has been at Wamesit for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the United States [illegible] [illegible] world [illegible] training. [illegible] realize what [illegible] are able to batter [illegible] They live right [illegible] well as in a [illegible]

Jack Conway Picks Sharkey to Win Over Johnson

Jack Conway, [illegible] the world's [illegible] and [illegible], [illegible] following dope on [illegible] heavyweight class [illegible] Floyd Johnson and J. Sharkey.

"I am picking Sharkey to win," says Jack. "This sensational youth, who has won 51 out of 57 bouts by knockouts, should be a real rival for Jack Dempsey in another year.

"Sharkey takes on the toughest opponent of his career tonight. Johnson has stopped some of the world's leading heavyweights. As he is fighting better than at any time in his career, a Sharkey victory will put the Roxbury puncher in the front ranks of his boxing division."

Jack has picked 76 winners out of a possible 88 this year.

Jazz Takes Its Place in World of Sport

By SPIKE WEBB,
Coach of the American Olympic Boxing Team.

ON board S. S. America, with American Olympic team, June 2[illegible] (By radio).—Jazz got its place in the world of sport today. The ship's band played while the American boxers went through "shadow fighting" to assist muscular rhythm.

Spike Webb.

Ben Funk, son of Congressman Funk, my best middleweight, was out for the first time, and he gave a good account of himself. He had been laid up with an abscess on the foot.

Funk boxed a fast round with George Mulholland of Butler College, and I was pleased with the way he shaped up. It was a great relief to me to have Funk in action, for his foot had me worried.

Kirby, Allegrini, La Barbe and Lazarus are coming along in fine shape. All are good men.

Most of the boxers continue to gain slightly in weight, but that is nothing to worry about. It will soon come off.

CHICKIE

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

By ELENORE MEHERIN

AND she wouldn't think she held her mind closed against the past. Oh blot it out oh, cling to these two who needed her and wanted her only that—and never let them know

[illegible] chair by Jennie [illegible]

[illegible] gave her the will to live.

It was a blessing for both of them—the slow convalescence. It brought them close. They had never been so near. Chickie combed her mother's hair, fastened [illegible] ribbons to the [illegible] sleeves of her nightgown. As she did this she murmured old gentle [illegible] things that brought tears to the gentle eyes. [illegible] better. [illegible] so very otherwise mother [illegible]

Jennie gave her looks that tore the heart they were so full of faith so pierced with love. Once she said "Chickie I didn't know you cared so much—"

Oh mother but now? Why do you ever think I liked being [illegible] I [illegible] being held down there in those awful [illegible] It was pretty terrible. Jennie and Jonathan yelling for me to come and no way to get here quicker. It was all right.

Jennie gathers these words like [illegible] jewels. She had them in [illegible] They were radiant.

One of those young [illegible] days that sometimes come in February [illegible] Martha said. "We must take her out for a while. It would do her a world of good. [illegible]"

[illegible]

She didn't want to go out. [illegible] the [illegible] life she had known when the days were all so glad.

Then she heard the bell ring [illegible] laugh in the hall. Jimmy's eager "Get a move on there."

Her face in the mirror was ashen lines at her mouth. She [illegible] the [illegible] lips with rouge. But tears [illegible] the powder. She had to wipe it off and try again.

Jimmy carried her mother to the car. They propped her up with pillows. Jennie was excited and smiled. Martha sat with her. Chickie was in the front with Jimmy.

She stumbled getting in. He caught her elbow, saying with a mocking laugh: "Say! I carry you too sweetie? What's the matter, my darling? You're white as a ghost."

She touched her head. "Just tired. I've been up a lot."

Jimmy's face sobered. When the car was going swiftly, he asked: "Chickie, is it only lack of sleep?"

"What else would you have it, Jimmy dear?"

"I'd [illegible] Is that why you went away?"

Her breath stopped.

"Why shouldn't I ask that, Chickie?"

"What do you mean? Yes [illegible] ask it. What did you hear?"

"Well, I heard of his marriage [illegible] a long while ago."

"Yes [illegible] Chickie, you're not going back in there to [illegible] firm stuff, are you?"

"No, they don't want me there."

"I should say not! Chickie, how [illegible] running his car? Mother [illegible] well. You could take the old ladies out of an afternoon. Good for them—and for you."

"Oh—maybe—" She leaned down [illegible] the seat and turned her [illegible] quickly [illegible] tears. If [illegible] pressed [illegible]

[illegible] "We [illegible] old [illegible] that [illegible] you'd gone to smash?"

"I did not, Chickie—you're no [illegible] over that, are you?"

"I [illegible] wished it so!"

She saw a ruddy color in his cheeks. He tossed the black hair free. "When will you take a lesson, Chickie? Tonight? Tomorrow?"

"When Jennie is better. I can't leave her now."

"You mean it, Chickie?"

"Yes. Oh, I mean about the lessons—"

"I get you. Lessons will do."

She gazed at him—a long while. Her lips trembled. She wanted to warn him—she wanted to say "Oh leave me alone, Jimmy—oh if you could know——"

That night Jennie held her hand. She asked tenderly: "Do you care for him, Chickie?"

Chickie didn't answer.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

—By Beatrice Fairfax—

What Shall She Do?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Several months ago I [illegible] young man [illegible] brought by brother. A few weeks after this meeting the young man [illegible] asked me whether I'd care to go out with him. I accepted his invitation with my brother's knowledge. I have been out with this young man twice and on both occasions he treated me very nicely and he himself was very entertaining.

Some time after my brother told my folks the young man has [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] calling me every since. The last time he called he made me promise I'd go out with him some time next week. I don't know what to do. Should I continue going out with him or should I drop him now?

WORRIED.

TRY to judge the man for what he is, not in terms of your brother's [illegible] of him. If he was not worthy to know you, why were you permitted to go out with him in the first place? [illegible] If, however, your brother merely has had a change of heart about the man or has had a misunderstanding with him, then you would do well to form an independent opinion and to get your people to do likewise.

lion dollars, plus a few hundred millions. One year ago it was one thousand and nine million dollars more.

The difference is due to Mellon, the Secretary of the Treasury. At the rate he is going, our debt will entirely disappear in fifteen years. That's BUSINESS.

INCIDENTALLY, those interested in Democratic candidates may remember that part of the economy was made possible by W. G. McAdoo. When he was Secretary of the Treasury he annoyed many big financiers by stabilizing the interest rate on government bonds at 4 per cent. They demanded 5¼, but he said "NO."

Whether McAdoo is elected President or not, one thing is sure. He has earned his salary several times over. Some big men would love McAdoo more, if he had let the government pay 5¼, thus raising interest rates everywhere.

A CHICAGO professor, removing what he calls "the thinking parts" of the brain of 200 pigeons, finds that "billing and cooing" go on as before. Some foolishly concluded that "love had nothing to do with brains and intelligence."

In the eye of Mother Nature, affection, which alone insures reproduction and continuation, is more important than any "thinking." It is the most important "brain work." Without affection and marriage, from the top to the bottom of the animal kingdom, there wouldn't be a NEXT generation, therefore no thinking done.

As for thinking, every cell in the body does its share of thinking and feeling.

BERLIN announces the sending of pictures, accurately done by wireless. That makes you believe in scientific miracles. It's more wonderful that the old Bagdad story of the virtuous shoemaker with one eye. You remember he was able to move the mountain, because, obeying the Bible, he had torn out one of his eyes to rebuke it for having looked too long at the well turned ankle of a young lady. Faith to rip out the eye that had offended gave him strength to move the mountain. Read about it next Sunday in Marco Polo's travel. Very edifying.

MALLORY and Ervine, heroic explorers, are killed by a monsoon, close to the top of Mt. Everest. The old mountain again triumphs, but it won't do so ALWAYS.

That highest peak on earth will yield to man, as everything else on this planet will yield. There will be an astronomical observatory up there some day, men going up comfortably in their flying machines and manufacturing up there, any kind of atmosphere that they want.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

WHEN Colonel Edwin L. Drake struck oil on August 28, 1859, in Titusville, Pa., he inaugurated one of the world's greatest industries and made a gift to mankind whose possibilities are still incalculable.

The use of oil as an illuminating fluid may be said to have begun with Drake's well. Its use for the propulsion of automobiles and steamships was, of course, far in the future of 1859.

Petroleum had been known for hundreds of years, but no real use had been found for it. It oozed out of the ground or floated on the surface of ponds, offering untold wealth to the farmers, who considered it merely a poisonous pest.

The Indians had used it to rub on their bodies, and quacks bottled the stuff and offered it as Seneca Oil, Indian Oil or under some other curious name, as a cure for rheumatism.

Samuel M. Kier, in 1848, took some of the stuff and distilled it and produced a fluid that would burn in a lamp, but it gave forth a horrible odor. He put it on the market as Carbon Oil at a dollar and a half a gallon.

In 1846, Dr. Abraham Gesner, experimenting with oil, produced an oil that he called kerosene and organized a company to put it on the market. This did not possess the dreadful smell of the carbon oil, and it sold readily, to some extent, displacing whale oil.

The demand grew beyond the supply, and Dr. Silliman, of Yale, was hired to conduct experiments to determine whether there was any relationship between coal oil and petroleum. He conducted his experiments on Oil Creek, in Pennsylvania, and succeeded in producing a good grade of kerosene by refining petroleum.

Business men were alert. They realized that if enough petroleum could be secured it would light the world. At that moment coal gas had been invented and was being used to a limited extent, but it was practical only in large cities.

A company was organized to try the experiment of boring into the ground in hope of finding a well of petroleum. Edwin L. Drake, who was called Colonel, though he had never been a soldier, but who had been employed as a railroad conductor, was appointed to superintend the work.

He began boring and progressed at the rate of three feet a day. The company got discouraged and abandoned the job, but Drake borrowed money and kept on himself. Oil was struck after he had been at work about six months. He had fortunately located in the centre of a rich deposit. It seeped gently into his well and produced at the rate of about twenty barrels a day for several years.

Out of crude oil have been produced as many as two hundred different things, including machine oil, kerosene, gasoline, benzine, vaseline, candles, chewing gum, lampblack, salves and other valuable products.

Plea of Orphan Girl

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there some one who will help a little orphan girl, age thirteen? I would like to go away with some one for the Summer, or if they liked me would stay all the time. I like babies and can care for them. I have never had a real mother or father, but the lady I am with now is just like one to me, but she is poor. I do need some things to wear, as I haven't any Summer coat or underwear, but I won't mind about clothes if only I can get a place to stay this Summer.

ORPHAN.

Girls' Dresses to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

My twelve-year-old daughter is going to camp, where she will not need her Summer dresses, and, as they will all be too small for her by Fall, some other little girl might just as well have the use of them this Summer. Please send me the address of a needy child eleven or twelve years old.

MRS. M. A. S.

Thank you. We have sent the address of Mrs. K. S. T., whose small daughter is greatly in need of dresses.

Thanks Unknown Giver

Editor Helping Hand:

I have tried my best through a friend of mine to locate the lady who kindly sent me a suit of clothes, a pair of trousers and some shirts. The parcel came from Watertown, and I should like to have thanked her by mail if I could find her name and address. Will you kindly see to it and tell her I am very, very thankful and I deeply appreciate her kindness, as everything she sent helped me out wonderfully.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney

Boston Health Commissioner.

IF you feel depressed, downhearted and have no "pep" to carry on your daily work, look in the glass and see if the whites of your eyes do not have a slightly yellow tinge to them. If they have you are suffering from a jaundiced condition.

Dr. Mahoney.

This condition is brought about by the bile that is normally formed in the liver being absorbed into the blood instead of escaping as it ought, through the intestines. The bile, when in the blood, is deposited not only in the whites of the eyes, but in the skin as well. In pronounced cases the skin is turned a dark yellow. The bile also is deposited on the nerve tissues and the brain, and this produces the depressed, tired feeling.

Jaundice in the slighter forms is generally caused by some error in diet or from lack of exercise. By studying your own conditions you can generally bring about a cure without difficulty.

In the more serious cases, however, there are many complications that arise, and it would be wise for you to consult your family physician. Infection of the gall bladder, gall stones or catarrh of the bile passage are among some of the complications that may develop from a serious attack.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Am seventeen years of age. Suffer with indigestion. Also am very nervous. Am too poor to see a doctor. What would you advise? J. X.

I would suggest that you go to the Medical Out Patient Department of the Boston City Hospital at 9 A. M. any day.

For the past two months have had a lot of small warts on my neck. Also am quite fat. I do not like it on the arms especially. What kind of soap is good for the skin? Is milk good to wash it in? Also have hairs on the side of my face. R. R.

I do not attempt to qualify as a beauty doctor. I might, however, offer you the following suggestions: Regular, graded exercises for the arms and legs will remove the superfluous flesh of which you complain. A plain, unscented cold cream applied to your face at night will probably do away with the dry condition of your skin. Electricity, properly applied, will do away with superfluous hairs.

Am 49 years of age. Have violent vomiting spells and sick headaches. Have soreness in stomach, liver, gall bladder, back and bowels. MISS S. M. S.

Suggest that you go to a hospital where you can have X-Rays taken and the necessary laboratory examinations made to determine the cause of the symptoms which you describe, as there may be some chronic disease which is causing you distress. If this is so, an operation may be a successful solution of your ills.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

SINCE a powerful bachelor organization has sworn that none of its members will marry a girl who can't cook, thousands of dames are rushing into the kitchen to rehearse.

THEY'VE put the phonograph records away and are beginning to play tunes on the gas stove.

A FRYING pan and a double boiler are a husband's favorite musical instruments.

TO them there's more melody in a plate of ham and eggs than there is in a grand piano.

LOVE begins in the parlor, but it has its final test in the kitchen.

IF a dame can't cook she soon becomes "Just a Girl That Men Forget."

A MAN'S head may be reclining in the parlor, but his mind is in the kitchen.

IN a few years from now a marriage license won't be valid unless it's signed by a chef.

EVERY girl is born with a desire to cook, but the delicatessens have spoiled her.

A CAN OPENER has broken up many a home.

NOWADAYS a fellow wants to know absolutely whether or not his fiancee can cook. This is one thing he won't take her word for.

A MAN may go into marriage with his eyes closed, but his mouth is always open.

LOVE is blind, but so far it hasn't got lockjaw.

IT'S easy for a girl to learn how to cook. You'd be surprised how many, many different things you can do with one egg.

Many New High 1924 Records Are Established as Stocks Resume Their Upward Progress

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

What is the business outlook for the second half of the year?

By the first of July the Democratic convention should be over. While business is keenly interested, it is not seriously alarmed over the proceedings. In responsible circles there is a feeling that, if McAdoo be defeated, the nomination will probably go to John W. Davis or some other conservative candidate. The third party talk is not taken very seriously. It is figured by business men that, should La Follette run, he would pull Democratic as well as Republican votes—perhaps more of the former than of the latter. The campaign is not expected to prove demoralizing to business.

The election itself will be out of the way two months before the end of the year. While financial and business leaders are not quite so certain as they were a little while ago that Calvin Coolidge would win, the majority still feel fairly confident of the result. Should this confidence become strengthened during the early stages of the campaign, "Wall street" would doubtless begin to exhibit buoyancy long before November, since it strives always to anticipate actual happenings.

* * *

The second half of 1924 promises to bring the adoption of the Dawes plan for composing Europe's chief trouble. Our international financiers and industrialists count upon immediate, important, farreaching developments following such action. The understandng is that loans will be extended on quite a scale to European borrowers, especially corporations and other non-governmental organizations. Much of this money will be spent here, thus stimulating activity, while the balance of the capital supplied will be utilized to improve conditions in the countries of the borrower. That, at least, is what is looked for.

The world's grain crops threaten to be unusally light this year.

* * *

The cotton outlook is similar, except that the shortage is actual, not merely prospective. Unless miracles happen, the 1924 yield will not be sufficient to meet the world's normal consumption and leave a reasonable carry-over.

* * *

In two vital directions the country is today stronger than in years. Our railroads have built up unprecedently efficient facilities and promise to earn satisfactory profits during the current year. Our public utility companies, now a close second in value to our railroads, are working themselves into a very strong position. Regulations in most States has become fair, improved facilities and appliances have reduced costs, and customers and others are being attracted as investors on a scale never before experienced. Another allied industry, that headed by General Electric and Westinghouse, is likewise doing extremely well and should end the current year with excellent balance sheets.

How conducive our monetary position is to quickening business activity need not be emphasized since it is plain to all. Cheap money invariably stimulates enterprise. It also tends to advance the market value of securities. Mergers of moment may prove a fruit of an abundance of loanable funds during the coming six months.

* * *

We are beginning to hear about "unemployment." The truth is that unemployment at this moment is well below normal. Our farmers will be able to use all the men industrial centres can spare. The number would not be large, to say the least, should the pessimism which has prevailed during the recent months veer towards optimism, a not improbable development.

* * *

To sum up, the outlook for the second half of 1924 doesn't encourage one to become a bear in the United States.

STOCKHOLDERS of Electric Light & Power of Abington and Brockton meet July 11 to vote on changing par from $100 to $25.

BOSTON & ALBANY has bought from American Locomotive four new switchers to cost $33,450 each.

WARE has awarded $60,000 loan to S. N. Bond & Co. at 2.80 per cent. discount plus $1.75 premium.

THERE IS NO diminution in appetite of investment market for new bond issues.

LOOKING BACK, years hence, the present may be referred to as an [illegible] [illegible]ations.

WOODSVILLE Fire District, N. H., will receive bids until July 1 for purchase of $25,000 electric loan 4½ per cent. bonds.

NASHUA, N. H., will receive bids until July 1 for purchase of $210,000 4½ per cent. school bonds.

HUDSON will receive bids until June 25 for purchase of $230,000 4 per cent. school bonds.

ISLAND CREEK COAL SETS TOP IN BOSTON

Many new high records for 1924 were established today when New York stocks resumed their upward trend. The outstanding feature in Boston was the setting of another new top by Island Creek Coal, up over 2 points; this issue rose Saturday spectacularly, bounding around 9 points.

Southern Railway, "Katy" pfd., Montgomery-Ward, Western Pacific, Brooklyn-Manhattan and Nickel Plate set fresh year's peaks.

CUYAMEL AT LOW.

Cuyamel Fruit tumbled 3 to a new 1924 low.

In the afternoon there were losses of a point to 2 or more in American Can, Davison, General Electric, "Mop" pfd., Mathieson, Schulte, Cast Iron Pipe, Stewart and Industrial Alcohol.

American Water Works rose 3.

Predictions that the market would enter a period of hesitation as the Democratic national convention got under way seemed on the way to fulfillment. Trading slowed up in all sections of the Wall Street list.

Price changes were mixed. Atlantic Refining broke over 6 points to 89, another new low, selling of this and other oils being influenced by another series of gasoline price cuts.

RECESSIONS SMALL.

Persistent demand continued, however, for the public utilities and rails. U. S. Steel common and other pivotal stocks developed a reactionary tendency, but the recessions were small. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

In trading on the Boston Stock Exchange there were gains of 2 or more for Eastern Mass. St. Ry. common and "B" issues, Island Creek Coal, preferred and New England Southern Mills. Point or more gains appeared for Edison, Mississippi Power and Mergenthaler.

Dawes Plan Action Gives Foreign Bonds Good Tone

Bond prices followed an irregular course in New York trading, with various foreign issues manifesting a firm tone on the proposal to call an inter-allied conference to hasten application of the Dawes plan. Mixed price movements prevailed in the railroad list, with semi-speculative issues winning great favor, after a brisk rise in the road's shares.

The abrupt decline in Atlantic Refining stock weakened the company's 5 per cent. bonds and profit-taking forced recessions in Gas company issues. Demand for Liberty bonds widened, prices moving up substantially.

Wall St. Gossip

AMERICAN SUGAR advanced price of refined sugar 10 points to 7 cents, no guarantees.

CLASS ONE railroads installed 11,364 freight cars and 153 locomotives in May. In April, 9,539 cars and 97 locomotives were placed in service.

DETROIT United Railways has called all of its 20-year first mortgage collateral 8 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds for redemption on July 25 at 107½ and accrued interest.

IN SPITE OF slowing up of general business, earnings of Western Union will show only slight falling off for first six months of this year.

UNIVERSAL PIPE & Radiator earnings in each of past few months have approximated $2 a share on 7 per cent. cumulative preferred.

UTAH SECURITIES for 1923 shows combined surplus of securities and subsidiaries after charges equivalent to $2.39 a share.

GULF OIL Company's No. 45 Elbarco, which was making 5,000 barrels a day, shows 19 per cent. salt water and has been closed in.

TRANSCONTINENTAL OIL (Standard Oil of New Jersey) has completed well No. 98 Cacalilao, at 1,610 feet, producing 3,000 barrels initial.

IT IS REPORTED Republic Iron & Steel will produce ingots at 50 per cent. capacity next week, against 20 per cent. this week.

YOUNGSTOWN SHEET & Tube rolling mill schedules are up.

AMERICAN ICE Company has purchased physical assets of Elmhurst Ice Company and Elmhurst Coal Company.

GRAINS ARE LOWER IN CHICAGO MARKET

Grains were lower in the Chicago market. Prices: Wheat—July, 1.11⅝ to 1.12½; September, 1.13⅝ to 1.14⅛, December, 1.16¼ to 1.16½. Corn—July, 86⅛; September, 84¼ to 85; December, 85 to 85¼. Oats—September, 41¼; December, 43⅜ to 43⅞.

PRICES ARE SHADED IN COTTON FUTURES

New York cotton futures market was slightly lower. July lost 12 points at 28.50. October was down 12 at 25.55 and December down 20 at 24.80.

Liberty Bond Prices

Liberty bond prices were—1st 4¼s, $101.93⅞; 2d 4¼s, $101; 3d 4¼s, $101.96⅞; 4th 4¼s, $102; new 4¼s, $104.81¼.

TRAVEL BRIEFS

NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

By THE AMERICAN TRAVELER

EASTERN S. S. LINES PUT ON ADDITIONAL BOATS.

To meet the insistent demands for increased sailings to the Maritime Provinces, the Eastern Steamship Lines will on July 2nd place in commission the S. S. "Prince Arthur" on the direct route from Boston to St. John, N. B.

The "Prince Arthur" will, in addition to the regular service now in effect, make two direct trips each way weekly until further notice, sailing from Boston Wednesdays and Sundays, beginning July 2, due in St. John about 8 o'clock next morning.

Returning, leave St. John Mondays and Fridays at 7 P.M. This additional service will be much appreciated by throngs of tourists who wish to go to the Maritime Provinces during the summer months.

ISLAND OF JAMAICA THRICE DISCOVERED.

Jamaica, they say, has been discovered three times—first by Christopher Columbus, then by the United Fruit Company and lastly by the American tourist. The third discovery of Jamaica—that by the American tourist—is comparatively recent. It has been facilitated largely by the United Fruit Company, which not only furnishes excellent passenger accommodations in its ships of the "Great White Fleet" but operates two highly modern hotels on the island.

You take ship at New York, and then for five days you sail almost due South. On the fourth day you pass San Salvador, the first land that Columbus sighted, one of the Bahama archipelago. Later you see the slopes of Cuba's eastern end. The ship is now going through the Windward passage from the Atlantic into the Caribbean, but Hayti is too far a way to the east to be seen.

The next morning Jamaica comes into view and the ship makes its way around its eastern end and along the southern shore till she enters the fine harbor of Kingston, the capital.

MYRTLE BANK HOTEL, KINGSTON

Once landed in Kingston the tourist looks about him with a curious eye. The place seems half familiar, half strange. The darkeys remind him of a city of the South, only not so smiling, but more deferential, and speaking with an accent reminiscent of England. Many of them are well educated, even cultured people.

The American tourist finds Jamaica altogether delightful. If he wants tropical days and glowing nights, he stays in Kingston, or goes up by rail or by motor to Port Antonio on the north shore. If he wants cooler weather, he goes up to some little English-kept hotel in the mountains and enjoys the equable climate there, with the temperature keeping steadily between 70 and 80.

Or perhaps he prefers to tour about the island, with its miles of excellent roads. He may bring his own car with him and hire a chaffeur (who knows the English habit of turning to the left, instead of the right) for two pounds a week—less than a tenspot. Or he may hire a car and have it driven for him.

BLUE HOLE, JAMAICA

As the island is only 150 miles by 50, he can drive all over it in a fortnight, and be rewarded by some charming tropical scenery, good accommodations and an insight into the interesting native life. He may play golf, too, if he likes, on fairly good courses; and he can always find someone to take him on at tennis. If he is fortunate enough to make the acquaintance of some wealthy white planter and be invited to the ranch he will meet delightful people and enjoy wonderful hospitality.

The current of tourist trade is setting in heavily toward Jamaica, and the sleepy little island is getting as much excited about it as any of these folks in the West Indies can.

COLONIAL LINE IN NEW QUARTERS IN NEW YORK.

Of interest to the travelling public, particularly the patrons of the Colonial Navigation Company, is the announcement of this popular steamship line, that it has moved its New York City terminal to Pier 44 No. River (foot of Christopher St.) where they can give their patrons better service, an exclusively-for-passengers entrance to the steamers and much better access to the city's surface, tunnel and elevated transportation lines, only a block and a half from the Hudson tubes.

The new quarters of the Colonial Line are commodious and specially fitted up to continue "The Public Be Pleased" policy which has always distinguished the service of the Colonial Line, on land as well as on sea.

CHEER FELT ON NEW HAVEN

Considerable cheer is being felt on New Haven. Stock's advance to a new high in the current upward movement contains at least a grain of comfort for shareholders, many of whom bought their stock for investment above 200 when paying 8 per cent. and considered a prime investment. In 1922 the high on New Haven was 35¼ and in 1913, when the dividend was passed, the high was 129⅞ and the low 65⅝. Back in 1903 the stock sold as high as 225¾. Previous to that it had sold at 279.

A rise in New Haven in proportion to advances in many other rails would do more to bolster up the spirits of New England than anything else. It would be remarkable if New Haven scored a big comeback, but stranger things have happened. New Haven runs through the richest territory in the country.

While recovery may be slow, in years to come New Haven may again become one of the country's profitable railroad systems and a dividend payer. But no one expects this over night. Shareholders were no doubt pleased with the analysis which indicates a surplus after charges for the year of $1,900,000.

The Whole Family

One of the greatest blessings of the automobile is that it keeps the family together in its pleasure.

Most every one can afford to own an automobile if the car purchased is "Inspected-Insured" by the Boston American.

Study the offerings below,—they are the pick of the market.

A TELESCOPE IS UNNECESSARY

If you seek bargains through The American classified columns. Everything is condensed and classified for convenience.

"used American six years—profits large"

I have used The American for the past six years. I have also used the other Boston papers, but find the Boston American has given me better results. For the amount of money I spent my profits were very large.

A Young Man's Twenty-first Birthday

It Should Fill OLDER Men With Feelings of Great Responsibility

A man who has contributed much to legitimate prosperity in America was to celebrate the twenty-first birthday of his son. He requested an editorial that might properly be read at a young man's twenty-first birthday dinner.

One man at the age of twenty-one has reached mental maturity, or even passed it. Another is a mere child, with all his development before him.

The greater the civilization, as a general rule, the more a man has to learn at twenty-one.

When the bushman is twenty-one years old he knows as much as he ever can know. His ability to detect an ostrich at a great distance across the hot sand is fully developed. He is, in fact, on the decline of life.

In our more advanced civilization a man of twenty-one is usually but a child. He has not even finished his physical growth. He has accumulated a certain mental equipment—various tools of knowledge—and the work to be done with them is all ahead of him.

It is impossible to write advice for a young man of twenty-one, or to give him suggestions, without possessing an intimate knowledge of his degree of mental development.

The younger Pitt, at twenty-one, was almost the ruler of England.

At the age of twenty-one, Lincoln, a much greater mind than Pitt, was a raw country boy, with only his sense of right, and a vague but earnest CRAVING FOR KNOWLEDGE to guide him toward his destiny.

The celebration of a lad's twenty-first birthday must interest every older man and inspire earnest thoughts and wishes in all.

At twenty-one a man becomes a part of the nation's great voting power. His voice counts thenceforward in determining the most important questions of the world that shall arise during his lifetime.

He begins his individual work as a man. His vote counts as much as that of the greatest citizen in the nation.

A boy's twenty-first birthday, too, is a day of great rejoicing and significance to all the fathers and mothers of children.

To the father and the mother, those twenty-one years have been years of care, anxiety and responsibility. Every day and every hour the child has been in his parents' thoughts. While he was sleeping, they have been awake, thinking and planning for him. While he was playing or studying, they were working to provide for his present and his future.

To the parents a boy's twenty-first birthday is like that day upon which the sculptor unveils his statue, or the artist invites his friends to see and judge his finished painting.

It is well for the old to give advice to the boy of twenty-one. But a young man's birthday celebration really ought to mean more to older men than it does to him.

The older men have seen him as a child, they hardly realize that he is a grown man. His maturity should impress upon the old the fleeting nature of life, and the importance of making the best possible use of the years that remain.

Here is a young boy, celebrating the beginning of his manhood. It seems but a moment since he was a child. But a moment hence, and he will have passed away, as the shadows of the clouds pass across the fields. And all of us who are older shall have gone long before him.

How earnest a view of life, and of our duties, we all should take if we could realize that our opportunities for useful work last but a day, and that nothing but useful work counts or is worth while.

All of us older men would, if requested, give elaborate advice to this boy starting out on his path.

Is there one of us that could conscientiously advise the boy to do AS WE HAVE DONE? If we spoke sincerely, should we not all advise him chiefly against the mistakes we ourselves have made—the waste of time, the self-indulgence, the unsatisfactory seeking of pleasure, the struggle to gratify foolish personal vanity?

How much better off the world would be today if every man of mature years could prepare a column of advice for this young boy, AND THEN TAKE THE ADVICE HIMSELF.

To the boy whose manhood has begun we should say:

Study the men older than yourself—AND STUDY ESPECIALLY THE FAILURES.

Realize that the greatest failure may be hidden behind the greatest apparent success.

The man who has great power and uses it to the disadvantage of the people, building himself up on the failure of others, ranks simply with the successful hyenas—those that have the most powerful jaws.

Work to make yourself independent of other men—strive to secure a certain, reasonable amount of money.

But remember that to be really worth while in the world a man must do something of use to others.

Don't be like the cow that doesn't give milk, the hen that won't lay eggs, the field that yields no crop.

Be of use to others; try to add something to the sum of human knowledge; influence those with whom you come in contact for good. All of these things every man can do in a greater or less degree.

Money Russia Never Got

Novieff, for the Bolshevists, requests a large loan for Russia and announces that in return Russia "may admit the validity" of claims against Russia. Such claims are numerous. Russia owes billions to France. She owes America SOME money, but she really never got that. It was simply taken out of the United States Treasury and handed over to American war profiteers to guarantee them against loss when the Czar fell. Not much of it ever got more than half a mile away from dear old Trinity Church at the head of Wall Street. What our grafters in Wall Street got from other grafters in Washington ought not to interest Russia.

The Russians are clever if they can persuade the world to lend them a lot of money by saying that they may possibly give in return a promissory note that may or may not be collected.

The best deal for France, eternally worried about Germany, and her birth rate, would be a treaty arrangement with new Russia, such as she had with old Russia. No reason why a Bolshevik Russia government should not make with a Socialist French government such an arrangement as the Czar made with the French bourgeois government.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE Song of the Love-Seeker, who hath found his Heart's Desire. Behold, behold, saith the Love-Seeker, I have found at last the Perfect Woman!

Lo, I know not the color of her eyes; but they are as twin mirrors, wherein I behold myself magnified, beautified and glorified.

Helen Rowland

Their flattery is headier than wine and sweeter than garlands and tributes and roses.

I know not the value of her words; but her voice is soothing as velvet and more stimulating than good music.

She leadeth me on to say the brilliant things; she spurreth me to "originality"; she tempteth me to sweet confessions of my wickedness; she inspireth me to reveal my secret hopes and aspirations; she lureth me to talk about MYSELF.

Her sympathy is more comforting than a cool drink after a baseball game, more satisfying than a vacuum bottle after the eighteenth hole.

She tappeth the reservoirs of my soul. She maketh my vanity to sit up and take notice. She awakened my Better Self.

I know not the dreams of her heart—but she hath read and understandeth all the dreams of MY heart—and that is sufficient unto me.

As a garland of lilies filleth the room with perfume, so she filleth the soul with SELF love—and all that which spilleth over is HERS.

Whether she be fair or false, wise or frivolous, plain or beautiful, I know not. But this I know—that she maketh ME to feel true and wise and noble and magnificent.

Yea, she is the bright and gracious pool into which Narcissus might have gazed and beheld his own perfection.

She doth not attempt to IMPRESS me.

She doth not endeavor to "entertain" me.

She doth not seek to pique my curiosity nor my vanity nor my jealousy.

She doth not seek to vamp, nor to flirt with me, nor to amuse me, nor to dazzle me, nor to fascinate me.

She UNDERSTANDETH ME—and that is enough!

And I say in mine heart, I cannot live without this woman! For she hath taken hold of my spirit.

And there is no OTHER like unto her.

SELAH!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

TONIGHT I am spent and weary, for the wind from the sea is strong, and over the wind-swept marshes I have ridden the whole day long. Oh, the sky was a down-turned chalice whence the gold of the sunlight spilled, while the light on the cloud-ships shimmered till my spirit throbbed and thrilled. The call of the rice-birds blended with the thrushes' melody and a wind-tossed seagull hastened back again to the restless sea. Drifting over the waving grasses came the larks' note, clear and long, with the sound of the plovers' whistle and the air was sweet with song. The rushing wind with its murmur and its tang of the sea nearby cast a spell on my vagrant fancy, and I lifted my heart on high. Oh, I soared like the seagull soaring to the call of the sparkling sea, for a boundless beauty beckoned and the answer awoke in me. And rising and ever singing while its white wings beat the air, like a gull through the blue deep's sailing, so did my spirit fare. It sped over the great plain dropping slowly down to the sea's white arms, where the staunch ships sail on its highways in the days of its smiles and its storms. But my body tonight is weary for the wind from the sea is strong, and over the wind-swept lowlands I have ridden the whole day long. I am tired tonight, but happy, for safe in my soul I hold the notes of the rice-birds, calling, and the glow of the sunlight's gold.

Plea for Family

Editor Helping Hand:

Won't someone come to the aid of a very deserving family? I am endeavoring to intercede for her, as she expects her twelfth baby this week. The husband is working only four days a week and then only four hours a day, and all they have to feed and pay rent is the pay of one girl and one boy, eighteen and sixteen, who don't get much. There are seven boys, sixteen, fifteen, thirteen, twelve, eleven, ten and nine, and the girls are eighteen, five, three, 1½. They also need clothing for the new baby. I have given my services for nursing and would do more if I could. This poor mother hasn't had a dress in years. All she has is one apron at a time and has to wash that when she goes to bed.

MRS. R. A.

Baby Dies, Offers Outfit

Editor Helping Hand:

My baby only lived a few hours, I am sorry to say, and if you would send me an address of an expectant mother I will be glad to send the baby clothes that were given me through the Helping Hand. MRS. L. C. 2.

Please accept both our sympathy and our thanks. We are sending the address of Mrs. A. H., one of the many on our list of expectant mothers.

Mother of Seven

Editor Helping Hand:

I am the mother of seven children and about to have the eighth in about six weeks. Oldest is fourteen and a girl, then there is a boy twelve and next five are girls, ages ten, seven, five, three and nineteen months. My husband has been out of work since last November with the exception of five weeks he managed to put in. It is quite impossible to get work in the mills at the present time. I would gladly accept anything, as we are all out of clothing and shoes. My size is 34-36, and husband's size is, well, I guess I don't know, it is such a while since he bought anything. Anyway, he weighs about 120 and is five feet five inches tall, so you see he is not very big. I never before asked for help, but I never had times like this. MRS. L. A. E.

Outgrows Gifts

Editor Helping Hand:

Last year I received some very nice clothes from kind readers which I have outgrown, so have to appeal to you again. My mother is ill most all the time, and it takes all the money I can earn to pay doctor's bills and rent. Could you get me in touch with some kind reader who could send me a few gingham dresses and a pair of shoes. I take size 16 dress and 5 shoe. I have a girl's Summer coat, size 14, which I would be glad to send to anyone in need. I work in a store, so must dress neatly.

EDNA.

Thank you for passing on the coat. We have sent you the address of Walter, who appeals for his fourteen-year-old sister.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON CRITICS OF DOGS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IN a conversation with a naturalist who is of considerable standing, but for obvious reasons desires to remain nameless, he expressed the following sentiments:

"The dog is no more than a degenerate wolf. When men found a litter of wolf whelps they killed off those that were independent enough to stand and fight, and preserved those that fawned and cringed.

"These they took home and bred. The result was the dog, who is essentially a coward.

"He is not only a coward, but he is a killer. More human lives are taken every year by the dogs than have been taken by wild beasts since the beginning of the country.

"At night every dog feels the impulse to kill. He becomes a killer.

"He will not kill an opponent who will stand up and fight him, but he kills everything that runs away, including chickens, ducks, geese and sheep.

"Some of the wild beasts will kill sheep and horses, but most of these animals that are killed are killed by dogs.

"The list of diseases that are communicated from dogs to man are numerous, including the tape worm.

"Every woman who lets a dog lick the face of her child, or hands, is inviting some of these diseases.

"Most of the itch that human beings have comes from dogs.

"I know I am up against a sentiment, and therefore cannot speak freely and authoritatively, for a sentiment is hard to combat.

"The reason most men like dogs is because dogs are loyal to them and afraid of them. Other wild animals, however, would be just as loyal and not so dangerous.

"In almost every instance of a wild animal destroying human life, the wild animal had the rabies, that is, he had been bitten by a dog.

"We have waged war for many years against the cat as a destroyer of wild life, and somebody ought to arise who is of sufficient consequence to cultivate a public sentiment against the dog, for he is equally as dangerous as the cat, if not more dangerous.

"At least, the movement to muzzle dogs during the Summer time should meet the hearty approval of everyone.

"Burglar alarms are a guarantee of protection almost as good as dogs; and they have this advantage, that they do not bite."

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SCIENCE, PROPHECY

By Garrett P. Serviss.

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

A CORRESPONDENT asks: "What explanation has science for Bible prophecies?"

Science has no explanation for Bible prophecies. It is not the business of science to inquire into Bible prophecies. They are not of such a nature that scientific methods could be applied to explain them. A prophecy is not open to explanation. If it were it would cease to be a prophecy and become a discovery.

It is a very widespread error that science opposes religion. Science simply lets religion alone, as it ought to do. But there are people who refuse to accept the word of science that it seeks no contest with religion, or with supernatural revelation. They insist that it must have an opinion to express on the subject, and they want to drag that supposed opinion forth with the purpose of belaboring it. The indifference of science to matters which do not concern it is transformed by such persons into opposition and enmity.

It is equally false that most scientific men are atheists, or scoffers at religion. The work of such men is searching for the exact truth, as far as human senses and understanding can grasp it. The kind of truth they seek is such as can be proved by means equally open and evident to all men.

Take such things as my correspondent specifically refers to, as for instance prophecies about the Messiah; prophecies about the Jews; prophecies about Babylon, and Tyre, and Egypt; prophecies about "seductive spirits" to come "in the latter days" to draw men away from the true faith, and so on. He says that more than 90 per cent. have been fulfilled. Very well; but science does not even ask for the proof of the statement, although when the question is persistently thrust upon it, it might retort: "What about the 10 per cent. that were not fulfilled? How do you account for them?"

The attitude of science toward the prophecies of Scripture, or rather its lack of any attitude with regard to them, was foreshadowed long before modern science was born by that very wise man, Francis Bacon. In his essay on "Prophecies" he says:

"I mean not to speak of Divine Prophecies nor of Heathen Oracles, nor of Natural Predictions, but only of prophecies that have been of certain memory and from hidden causes" As an example he quotes the verses in a tragedy of Seneca that were held to be a prophecy of the discovery of America:

> "In later ages there shall come a time when Ocean shall loose the chains of things, and the vast earth shall lie open, and Typhis shall disclose new worlds; nor shall Thule be the farthest land."

"Thule" was the name given to Great Britain and far northern Europe by Pytheas, the Marseillaise navigator who discovered them some three centuries before Christ.

Bacon quotes other apparent prophecies of a more definite kind, such as that of the death of Henry II. of France "in a duel," and he says of them: "My judgment is that they ought all to be despised, and ought to serve but for Winter talk by the fireside."

Science has followed the excellent example of Bacon in not undertaking a critical examination of the prophecies contained in Holy Books, because it is not its design any more than it was his to do anything unnecessarily to challenge religious beliefs, as long as such beliefs do not stand in the way of the progress of knowledge.

With regard to certain statements of fact in the Scriptures the case is somewhat different, for in a few instances such statements are so opposed to established truths that they cannot be accepted literally. But even then the scientific man does not think of throwing religion overboard, or of attacking its essential principles. He simply says: "It cannot be that this was intended in the sense that it seems to convey."

Once-Overs

CUT OUT THE PERSONAL SLANT AND GIVE REAL SERVICE.

Sometimes you wonder if the world has given you a square deal.

You have worked hard, tried to do right, tried to do your civic duty as well as your home duties, in fact tried to do everything you have been called upon to do, and yet you are in the same old rut.

Other men whom you think less capable, have never worked so hard as you, and who have always seemed to get more enjoyment out of life, are still farther ahead of you in a financial way.

You think of these things and you believe that conditions are not equal.

You think that these men have been more favored in some ways.

You notice these fellows are on friendly terms with men you could never find an opening to approach.

How do they make these friends and get these helps to success?

But is it not true that you have paid little attention to the big issues, for you have made yourself so busy with little things—trivial matters?

Easily satisfied with little accomplishments, you are unwilling to put forth the greater effort it requires to win the greater laurels.

Your own comfort and personal ease means more to you than the results you might obtain if you cut the personal slant and give service that is service.
